Rosa's mother died around the time Coolidge was not choosing to run, and Giuseppe took on the job of bringing up the bambina himself. He cooked for her, bina himself. He cooked for her, sewed for her and even kept her in a basket on his pushcart while he was hawking escarole and finocchio. And, for a couple of years, the standard joke on Mulberry St. was to go up to Giuseppe and say, "How much you want for Ross?"

Like all East Siders, Giuseppe had hig plans for his kid. and
