Methods to Pickle Melon Told

By HASKIN

Q. HOW MANY colors are there? R. B.
A. Correctly speaking there are but six colors, three primary—red, blue and yellow, and three secondary—orange, violet and green.

Q. Please give directions for making watermelon pickle. C. O. R.

A. Following is the Department of Agriculture recipe which makes about six pints: Ingredients: 4 pounds prepared thick watermelon rind, lime-water made with 2 quarts cold water and 1 tablespoon of lime (calcium oxide purchased from drug store); 2 tablespoons whole allspice; 10 two-inch pieces of stick cinnamon; 1 quart vinegar; 1 quart water; 4 pounds sugar. To make: Select thick rind from a firm, but not overripe melon. Trim off the green skin and pink flesh. Weigh 4 pounds of the prepared rind and cut in inch pieces. Soak for 1 hour in lime-water with fresh water, and cook 1 1/2 hours or until tender. Add more water as needed. Drain. Put spices loosely in a thin, clean white cloth and tie tightly. Put this spice bag in a kettle with vinegar, sugar and 1 quart water. Bring to boiling. Add the watermelon rind and boil gently 2 hours. Remove the spice bag. Pack the rind in clean, hot sterile jars which will seal tight. Fill jars to top with hot sirup. Seal tightly. Or, if preferred, let the watermelon stand overnight covered with the sirup. In the morning remove the spice bag. Boil 1 minute. Then pack in jars and seal.

Q. When was the first heavyweight championship fight televised? Who were the participants? P. S.

A. The first heavyweight championship fight televised was the Louis-Cornett fight, which took place on June 19, 1946.

HIGHBROW OR LOWBROW?

One's 'Brow Level' Makes Difference in Manhattan

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK. Are you a highbrow or a lowbrow? This is the biggest question today in the salons and saloons of Manhattan.

Nobody inquires any more whether you're in society's blue book. No one except maybe a visiting Congressman asks whether you are or ever have been a member of the Communist party. And who cares now whether you belong to the National Association of Manufacturers or pay dues to the Glass Workers Union? Echo answers: "No." On such matters as politics and where a man lives or how he earns his bread, is he a lowbrow, middlebrow or a highbrow? That's the big payoff.

The controversy was started some weeks ago by a light-hearted article in Life Magazine. It classified the "brow level" of people by their tastes in food, furniture, clothing, drinks and literature.

Do you like Stravinsky with your meals or a light white wine? That tabs you, Mac. Did you buy a new black posture chair for the living room, lady, or did you come home with an overstuffed sofa on your back, you old lowbrow, you? Either way, sister, we know what you are. Ya-a-y, ya-a-y! Highbrow, middlebrow, lowbrow!

Why, it's got the whole town going culture crazy. Here in the middle of a heat wave some men would drop dead of sunstroke rather than change from their tweeds into seersuckers. Tweeds, doncha know, and you'd better know—are a highbrow.

Office receptionists still read Faith Baldwin—but they wrap the book in a dust jacket from the latest novel by Jean Paul Sartre. He's a genuine 24-karat French highbrow existentialist, he is. He must be, or why would he be so cynical?

The bartender draws a foamy glass of beer, and whispers, "Would you mind taking it in the back room? They say it's a lowbrow drink and the boss wants to keep this a classy joint."

"But this man says he drinks nothing but an adequate red wine," protests the cop.

"Oh, the sign of a real highbrow," says the sergeant. "Would you gentlemen to a private cell. By the way, sir, I'm a red wine man myself. Which do you find most adequate to the palate?"

Well, boys, this is it. The real class war is on now, the true blue snobbery based on the altitude of the brow.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

THE FACTS show that we are going through a necessary and healthy business readjustment as we return to normal buyers' markets and free competition. These are the conditions which, in the past, have provided the foundation of our historic economic progress. —Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder.

THE UNITED NATIONS, as presently constituted, is too weak to cope with an actual crisis, and this very weakness tends to create crises. —Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R.) of New Hampshire.

YOU HAVE got to stand up to what seems to be the danger—the cold war and the underground movements which are sapping our spirit. Be strong; be courageous; be firm; stand up to it; don't sit down to it. —Field Marshal Jan Smuts, former South African premier, addressing the British people.

slaw salad, you know she's either a lowbrow herself or thinks you are. A lettuce and tomato salad is only a few I.Q. points higher. And if the old girl, after dinner, suggests the group play gin rummy or bridge—don't take this second insult. If you care anything about social standing, scream at her: "Listen, Biddy, you think we're morons? With us it's canasta, the new Argentine game, or we don't pick up the cards."

Personally, however, I'm going to sit out this latest cultural war. The lowbrows will probably lose, because if they start drinking an adequate red wine the highbrows will immediately decide beer is better. For a highbrow can't stand to be in the majority.

So I'm going to stay neutral. I'm just a "no-brow" myself, not high, not low, not middle. I'll sip red wine with the highbrow intelligentsia, gulp champagne or Scotch and soda with the middle brow or blow-brow froth all night with the lowbrows.

I'll roll on a horsehair sofa or perch on a posture chair till my back breaks. I'll even sit on a small tack—if that'll help preserve a cultural trace. But neither for class nor mass will I eat grits with sorghum or read T. S. Eliot by candlelight. I won't be brow-beaten.

And I'll go to my grave secretly convinced that falling hair made more highbrows in America than Harvard University.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

Answer to Question No. 1. Yes, partly natural, but probably mostly acquired. The natural part is possibly because a woman has but one father for her child and feels intensely about the father's fidelity. Theoretically, by new techniques, a healthy woman could produce 360 children during her lifetime. The method is already applied to prize female animals. Had Hitler known this, he would have applied it for his "super race," violating all human sanctity, as he did. However, the acquired part of woman's suspicions are doubtless because men have wider worldly contacts, while women are more confined at home under the eyes of their neighbors. A lot of her suspicions are justified.

Answer to Question No. 2. No. Even Solomon had his boyhood experiences, family training and environment, all of which influenced his judgments. Yale law Professor H. D. Lasswell in his "Power and Personality" shows how sympathetic or unsympathetic temperaments, sense of humor, desire for publicity, boyhood training, frustrations, happy or unhappy married life, etc., all enter into their decisions. The Justices of the Supreme Court rarely disagree. This shows impartial justice is only an approximation. As Chief Justice Taft said, "The object of a lawsuit is not to obtain justice, but to reach a decision."

Answer to Question No. 3. Yes. In the terrible depression years of 1892-96, we first heard of the "Social Gospel."

Led first by Josiah Strong and Washington Gladden, as pointed out by sociologist William C. Smith and later by Shailer Matthews, Graham Taylor, Walter Rauschenbusch and others, this new social gospel influenced social legislation. But in World War I and the mad twenties when everybody was getting rich, social welfare was mostly forgotten. Prof. Smith says, "We care for social salvation and the Kingdom of God in a bull market." The depression of the '30s united men's hearts again and social legislation once more forged ahead. Common suffering brings us closer to our fellow-men.
