NEW YORK - Wisconsin's Cy Howard goes around with an uneasy feeling these days, now that the film version of "My Friend, Irma" is about ready for release to the public. Will the millions of avid fans of his radio show "My Friend, Irma" be happy with what the screen has done with their favorite characters? he broods. The former University of Wisconsin student and actor wrote the movie version him-

And Marie Wilson, the blonde Irma of the radio will play the same role in the film—at the insistence of the fans.

But—
Plenty of Critics
Plenty of Critics

"Everyone who listens to the radio program week after week will be a self-appointed critic of the film," Howard says.
"The listeners have their own ideas as to what the characters should look like, how they should react in any given situation, how they should gesture and comport themselves in delivering their lines.

Can't Satisfy Everyone "Now, obviously, we haven't been able to make this picture so that everyone of the listeners will be completely satisfled. But we have tried to make each character come alive on the screen in a way that will satisfy the greatest number of the radio show's fans. I just hope we've succeeded sufficiently so that there won't be too many 'how could you' letters in the mail after the film is released.'

In transferring "Irma" to the screen, Howard wrote an original script for producer Hal Wallis rather than revising some of the radio scripts, Everything had to be new so that those theater-goers familiar with the radio series would not anticipate business and gags.

Has To Be Different "Besides," explained Howard, "You can't just add sight to a radio script and get away with it. Some bit that causes a radio audience to double up with laughter may bring silence or a grean of displeasure when seen in performance. "For example, on the radio show it would be possible to get a laugh simply by Irma telling her friend, Jane, that she was walking down the street and fell through an open man-hole. In a film that would be a flop. You would have to show it happening.

Wallis thinks so highly of the first "Irma" film that he is already planning a sequel, to be called "My Friend Irma Goes West." Howard again will serve as script writer and associate producer.

Formerly Horwitz

Howard, then known as Seymour Horwitz, attended the university from 1936 to 1938. He took leading roles with Wisconsin Players and with J. Russell Lane, former players' director.

He is a former script writer for Jack Benny and has appeared in Broadway plays including Maxwell Anderson's "Storm Operation."
