Hollywood

By Edith Gwynn

Shirley Temple's oft-denied domestic dither with John Agar won't be a secret much longer. Their recent appearances in public spots together are reported as strictly for publicity purposes.

Katherine Hepburn heads for Broadway soon and her stage appearance in "As You Like It," long itemed here, but she'll leave with a brand new Metro contract in her slacks pocket.

Also told you some time ago that Virginia Kellogg, authoress of "The Cage," the woman's prison yarn, had gone to Washington on a "secret mission" for Metro. It was to get data on a story of the tomcat consular service and it turned out to be "Tom, Dick, and Harriet." This will be Katie Hepburn's first movie under her new pact.

Jerome Courtland and Terry Moore have been love's young dream for a long time—even though he steps out with Sally Forrest now and then. Ida Lupino found Sally and starred her in "Not Wanted," but the fan magazines haven't "discovered" the Forrest gal yet. However, Life and Collier's will have spreads on her within a month.

David Niven is the likeliest candidate for Joan Crawford's co-star when her new picture, "The Victim," starts shooting.

That "Mr. and Mrs." type air-show that the James Masons have been doing together may go on and on. BUT not with them, according to current plans. These two have been tiffing for weeks with Arch Oboler, producer of the show, and apparently Oboler comes out the winner!
