Orientation Plan Initiated at U.W.

It Seeks to Bridge Home-College Gap

Posed, well-adjusted students who bridge the gap between high school and college freshman life easily and with a minimum of difficulties.
 That is the goal of the University of Wisconsin in its new student orientation program scheduled to begin Sept. 12 and continue through the first five weeks of the fall semester.
 By The Students
 The program, termed "one of the most comprehensive" by university officials, is being planned and executed completely by university students. More than 500 upper-classmen are working on the project among them 105 Madison young people.
 The orientation program will begin with a week of supervised activities whose purpose is to "introduce the new students to the educational, cultural, recreational, and personal service facilities of the university as rapidly as possible."
 First on the roster will be the president's convocation and reception, where Pres. Fred will personally welcome the newcomers, The Memorial Union, student religious groups, the YWCA, and sororities and fraternities will have special welcoming functions.

 Activities Circus
 A highlight of the week will be the activities circus, where the freshmen will meet the heads of the various organizations and learn of the many activities open to them.
 A comprehensive testing program, meetings with the faculty and student advisers, and registration will wind up the week.
 Madisonians Listed
 The Madison corps of workers is headed by Julianne Weiss, 4026 Madison circle, who is assistant general chairman of the program. ## Maybe Even Turkeys Do Damage to Crops

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Law enforcement officers in Milwaukee county have lost a chance to knock off a pheasant or rabbit for Sunday dinner.
 The county board refused action on a proposal to amend a ban on the firing of guns in the county so law officers could shoot birds or animals that damage crops.
 One supervisor feared too many officers would go out to "knock off their Sunday dinner."
 PLAN LAST DANCE
 ALBANY—The last street dance and entertainment of the summer, sponsored by the Community club of Albany, will be held Wednesday night, according to Dr. F. J. Bongiorno, president of the club.
