Wisconsin's largest school will open Monday when WHA and the other stations of the State Radio Council's network begin the 1949-50 season of "The Wisconsin School of the Air."

More than 450,000 registrations are expected in the 10 courses to be offered. More schools in northern and eastern Wisconsin will be able to use the courses because of the addition of WKWV, Calumet county, and WBSF, Marathon county, to the network.

Hollywood
By Edith Gwynn

David Brian, who made his mark in "Flamingo Road," is one of the male leads in "The Victim," which goes into production next week at Warners, starring Joan Crawford. Just about everyone connected with this picture was dying to have Mel Ferrer play the other male starring role—but evidently somebody couldn't see paying Mel his very high salary. This, no doubt is why he starts a directing chore at R.K.O. next month.

Valli, tired of the one-woman monicker that was tacked on her when she came over here to star in "The Parricide Case," is switching back to her full name immediately and you may call her Alida Valli from now on.

Verna Duke, of the better composers, is about to take unto himself a Parisian bride, according to our European spy.

Don Ameche will head a list of movie stars who took to San Francisco for a big benefit Oct. 8. It's for the Santa Clara Youth center.

Gale Storm, now finishing her role in "The Whip," has just gotten a long-term contract with Universal. She didn't like the kind of roles they handed her. And so "The Storm blew."

Ah—glamorous, amorous Hollywood! If you were working in "Dead on Arrival" this week, you'd have the thrill of toiling in the following exciting places—all being used for scenes in the picture: the city morgue, the gas works, and a soap factory. Also a lot of shooting will be done on Skid Row—a street more depressing than N. Y.'s Bowery.

Fred Zinneman, who directed that great piece of celluloid, "The Search," will direct "The Men," the picture for which Marlon Brando has temporarily, at least, forsaken Broadway, and in which Teresa Wright is the femme lead.

What's more, Zinneman is going to rehearse the principals in the cast for an entire three weeks before permitting a camera to turn on 'em. How thorough can you get?

That accident during which Bob Hope fell off a barrel and busted his back a few weeks ago won't be going "to waste." It just so happens that every second of that painful wrench and bump was recorded on film, for the cameras were still turning when it happened. First the studio bosses were trying to find some way to write the fall into a sequence in the movie. Then they dropped that idea. Now, instead, the entire filmed mishap will be used as an advertising trailer for "Fancy Pants," when this Hope flicker is due in the theaters.

Starlet Vera Howard and Douglas Davis were secretly wed 10 days ago.

Florence Marley, who played opposite Humphrey Bogart in "Tokyo Joe," went east to visit with her husband, whom she hadn't seen for two years. But she's returning to Hollywood with a nice new contract at Allied Artists under her arm.

Wow! What an array of stars Metro has lined up for "Show Boat," which will be filmed about the time the snows fall. To date it reads like this: Judy Garland (she'll be through with "Summer Stock" by then), Kathryn Grayson, Frank Morgan (as Captain Andy), Howard Keel, Ethel Barrymore, plus Marge and Gower Champion. Only "chief role" in this classic still uncast is the actor who would play the role created by Jules Bleasde, the fine Negro singer.
