

TIP OF THE MORNING: Don't worry about a baby-sitter if you're planning to go to the Grieg Male chorus concert Monday night.

Strange to Western eyes and ears, Chinese opera nevertheless found a receptive audience Wednesday night at Central high school auditorium.

About 800 persons attended the opera, given as part of a continuing program explaining and exhibiting Chinese culture.

One could describe the opera as "interesting," but ponderous about cultural impacts and interrelations. Either course would be right but incomplete.

It is impossible, of course, to tell whether the whole thing was good by Chinese standards, but I suspect it was—the students were so sincere, so hard-working.

It opened with music by a group of hsiao and another flute, erhu and hu chin, violins, and bell for rhythm.

Students in the "Sail-hung-ba" of northwestern China were stragglingly similar to American square dancers, and Fung-Chi Wu and Paula Chen did a simple yet graphic dance.

Stevens will have a professional company at Miami Beach's Variety theater, planning to open Jan. 17. Last season Stevens brought such players as Edward Everett Horton, Glenda Farrell, and Guy Madison, to name a few, to the Florida resort.
