Knowledge of Bridge Sign Language Key to Good Play

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

FOR TODAY'S lesson on the play of the hand I want to take up the language of the cards. Although most players quickly learn that a high discard says, "I like that suit," while a low discard says, "I do not," there are times when you have to use negative discards to make the cards talk for you. Now let us follow that principle in today's hand.

Declarer won the opening lead of the ten of hearts with the jack. West did not like hearts so he played the deuce, which says "Partner, I either have a singleton heart," or "I do not like that suit."

Declarer's next play was the king of spades. East did not go up with the ace. He correctly let the declarer hold the trick. North continued with another spade on which East played the ace.

West at this point had to make a discard. There is no use in discarding the three of hearts, as he has already told his partner he did not like hearts. What West wants his partner to do is to shift to clubs.

He should discard a high club, but the only high club that he can afford to discard is the jack and that might cost him a trick. If he plays the three of clubs, although the deuce of clubs is missing, East might not be able to read that as an encouraging card. So West has only one recourse open to him, he should discard the deuce of diamonds.

Now he has plainly said, "Partner, I did not like hearts and I do not like diamonds." Then East has only one choice — that is to lead a club. He has to hope that West has at least the ace-jack of clubs in order to defeat the contract. So the queen of clubs, at this point, is the correct play.

If declarer plays the king from dummy, West will win with the ace. He will cash the jack of clubs and lead the third club, which East will win with the ten, and the contract is defeated.

M. C. Getting Letters About Santa Order

Hundreds of letters per day are now being received by Ralph Edwards from children who feel he has a great deal of influence with Santa Claus. Undoubtedly they recall Santa's visit to "Truth or Consequences" last Dec. 25 and the "consequence" Edwards gave him: to go back across the country with his sleigh and reindeer and leave gifts at any homes that he missed the night before on his Christmas Eve ride. Santa broadcast from his imaginary sleigh-in-the-air as he whisked across the country and stopped at children's homes in Hollywood, San Francisco, Hammond, Ind., and New York City.

Jimmy Durante May Have Suit, No Pants

Jimmy Durante, the NBC comedian, bought a new pair of slacks but a week has elapsed and they haven't been delivered. He says he's suing the tailor for promise of breeches.
