'Riders in the Sky' Tops 1949

By WILLIAM L. DOUDNA (State Journal) Music "Riders in the Sky," a recapitulation of the Billboard's weekly summaries has revealed. This was something that most of us has suspected for quite a while. Anyway, the Billboard staff went through more than 200,000 mentions of songs by the country's record dealers and juke box operators, and came up with 6,398 points for "Riders."

"That Lucky Old Sun," which hit the market late in the year and thus didn't have as much time to amass points, had a starting count of 6,287 for starting count of 6,287 for starting count of 6,287. Currently, it rates ninth in the Billboard's weekly summary. Here are the others of the top 10 of the year in order: "You're Breaking My Heart," "Cruising Down the River," "Some Enchanted Evening," "Again," "Forever and Ever," "Mule Train," "Room Full of Roses," and "Slipping Around."

and other sambas, tangos, and rumbas, all in the familiar Cugat style. Frankie Carle (Columbia): "Frankie Carle Meets the Masters," another 10-inch LP record. A full menu of Frankie's recipes for using Mozart, Chopin, Beethoven, and others in dinner-dance fare. Tasty, for them as likes it. Program includes "Lucia," sextet, "Turkish March," Schubert's "Serenade," others.

Al Goodman (Columbia): "Sentimental Favorites," eight nostalgic tunes on a 10-inch LP disc. For quiet listening, or smooth dancing, you can't beat these. Among the songs are "Make Believe," "Roses of Picardy," "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "Moonlight and Roses." Claude Thornhill (Victor): "The Iowa Indian Song," a big production job which sounds great the first time you hear it, but doesn't last. Second side is "Johnson Rag," a mediocre version.

Kipling Once Lived in Vermont

When Rudyard Kipling was 11 years old, his mother made a trip from India to England to visit him. Mrs. Kipling found out about the bad treatment which the boy had suffered, and quickly took him away from the Southsea home. For months he enjoyed her company, and felt that "heaven on earth" had come to him. In later years he was to write this verse: "If I were hanged on the highest hill, "Mother o'mine, oh mother mine, "I know whose love would follow me still, "Mother o'mine, oh mother o'mine."

soon afterward published several of his famous stories, including "Plain Tales from the Hills," "The Phantom Rickshaw" and "We Willie Winkle." In 1892, Kipling married an American woman, and the couple set out on a trip around the world. Their journey took them from England across the Atlantic ocean, and then to Canada and to Japan. Life seemed pleasant to them until Kipling went to a bank in Yokohama, a branch of the British bank where he had placed his savings. So the Kiplings settled in a Vermont village. They rented a house for $10 and called it Bliss cottage. In that dwelling their first child, a daughter, was born. Kipling was now 27. He soon began the writing of stories which grew into his famous "Jungle Books."

The two "Jungle Books" contained stories of wild animals in India. The volumes appeared in 1894 and 1895, and were well received. Two young men visited Kipling in Vermont. One was Sam McClure, who was planning to launch a new magazine. The other was Frank Doubleday, who was then building up a great publishing company. Both asked the author for the rights to publish his writings. Doubleday obtained a contract to publish all Kipling's writings to that date in book form. After four years in the United States, Kipling and his family returned to England to live, and there he spent most of the rest of his life. He died in 1936 at the age of 71. In addition to his stories, he left the world many poems.
