Mother Love Reforms Half-Wild Shepherd

MILWAUKEE—(UP)—Mother love brought a half-wild German shepherd dog back to civilization here.

Police had received reports about a dog which had lived by hunting for the last six months. She fled at the approach of people. Officers and humane society representatives found five puppies in a vacant barn near the wild dog's hunting grounds and took them to a shelter.

That night, the dog came to the barn and howled until daybreak. She was still there when police visited the barn the next day. They gradually won her confidence, climaxed when she licked one of the policemen's hands.

The wild mother, now friendly and subdued, was reunited with her pups at the shelter.
