It Happened Last Night

—(By Earl Wilson)—

A few minutes after I started interviewing King Peter II of Yugoslavia, I felt like calling him "Kingy, old boy," or Pete. He's that informal . . . this boyish, 26-year-old unemployed monarch who lost his job when Tito bounced in. His majesty clicked his heels-heels that were in brown loafers---when we shook hands in his hotel suite.

"Do you expect to rule again?" I said. "Well, yes, I do." The king, who was in gray chalk-striped suit, lit a cigaret. "In my opin-in then wort me hock "Mt" ion they want me back. But," he laughed, "that's MY opinion!"

"Is war closer than when you came here last fall?" The king, who looks sur-prisingly young — after all, he's about Montgomery Clift age-said, "No. Neither side

"Your majesty," I said, "there was a story about you and the Duke of Windsor battling over the main table at Maxim's in

The King looked down at his brown loafers and then up again, and quietly said, "For some weeks my wife's been mad at me." "She wanted to go to Paris, I had to stay here and do my work. "I told her, 'You go and I'll come later.' So she left.

"I leave Thursday on the Queen Mary. Split? No! We have the boy. She calls on the phone from Paris. I wondered what the heck nose!'

It must be a bundle because

"Are you recognized much on the street?" "Yes, considerably. I don't
