DIAL LITES—TONIGHT

6:00—KECA—When Bradley and Preston ride out on the canyon trail to find the gold that is cached there, King tries to warn them that they are being followed by a ruthless gang of outlaws. . . The warning is too late, so they must fight out another desperate battle on the "Challenge of the Yukon."

6:00—KNX—That man is here again. . . Who? "The Man Who Came to Dinner!" Clifton Webb takes the part of the uninvited guest who on leaving, breaks his leg and again moves in on his hostess, this time to recuperate. . . all bedlam breaks loose, but Sherry's secretary (Lucille Ball) does her best to calm everyone. "Radio Theater" brings this one to the air.

7:15—KTED—Each week night this station brings to listeners a public service program, "Orange County Speaks," which endeavors to acquaint you with community affairs.

7:30—KHJ—Big Jake, one of the most skilled train robbers in the country, meets his match in "The Cisco Kid" during the adventure entitled "Blazing Guns on the Railroad."

8:30—KFI—Jo Stafford will share the spotlight with Gordon MacRae in the "Railroad Hour" presentation of Jerome Kern's musical romance "Sunny."

TELE-TIPS

7:00—KECA (7)—"Triple Theater" presents the world television premiere of J. Arthur Rank's production "Uncle Silas" starring Jean Simmons and Katina Paxinou, to be followed by "What a Man" with Johnny Downs, and a western, "Tumble Down Ranch."

7:15—KTSL (2)—Lee Wood transports his "Lee's Lair" program to another world, in fact to a lost world. Interviewed tonight are three young men who will describe their planned trip to the Amazon Basin of South America. They will sail from Long Beach in October to probe the world's last great wilderness.

8:00—KTTV (11)—Ilka Chase of "Glamour-Go-Round" will star on tonight's "Silver Theater" production "Concerning the Soul of Felicity."

8:30—KNBH (4)—Stanley Rubin, producer, and Pat Hogan, radio and television editor, will be the guest judges of "Lights, Camera, Action," when they view the talents of aspiring actors and actresses.

Permitting Bidder to Set Up Sluff, Ruff Set Contract

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
Written for NEA Service

BRIDGE is a game of points, and generally you win more when you carry the ball—that is, when you become the declarer. There are times when a side will get way out of line on a contract, and go for a heavy penalty; but you cannot count on that to win. There is never any necessity to bid for game unless there is a good chance to make it, and bidding has become so well understood that a side usually knows whether or not they have a chance for game.

The declarer also has another advantage—the opponents can make a mistake. I do not argue that it is more difficult to play a good defensive game than an offensive game, but the defenders must be on their toes. For example, we generally try to avoid giving declarer a sluff and a ruff, but at times, as in today's hand, that may be the only way to defeat a contract.

Against the four-heart contract West cashed the king and ace of clubs. East played the eight-spot and then the deuce, asking his partner to continue. The third club was led. East won with the queen and declarer played the jack, leaving East with the thirteenth club.

Now East stopped to consider. South had opened the bidding with a spade, which meant that he had at least four and probably five spades. He had shown up with three clubs. He must have at least a four-card heart suit. Therefore it was fairly certain that he had only a singleton diamond.

East knew that if he led a spade declarer probably would cash the ace and king and ruff a spade in dummy, setting up that suit. If he led a diamond it would be won in dummy with the ace and then spades would be led.

The only chance to defeat the contract was to lead the ten of clubs, hoping to establish a trump trick—and it did. South discarded a spade. West trumped with the nine of hearts and dummy trumped with the queen. Now declarer could not avoid the loss of a trump trick to East. Careful defense defeated the contract.

Death Claims Radio Actor 'Dink' Trout

HOLLYWOOD, March 27. (AP) Francis (Dink) Trout, 51, the "Mr. Anderson" of the Dennis Day radio show and "Luke Spears" of the Lum and Abner show, died late last night following major surgery.

He also appeared on the Bob Hope and Jimmy Durante shows and also acted in the movies. He was a radio actor in Chicago before coming here.

Trout, a native of Beardstown, Ill., was graduated from the University of Illinois. He was unmarried. Survivors include his 84-year-old mother, Mrs. Mary Trout.

Jo Stafford in Big Demand for Radio

With two commercially sponsored network radio programs plus her weekly Radio Luxembourg disc jockey show, Jo Stafford, beginning late this month, will have the largest radio audience of any female artist in the world.

She also appeared on the Bob Hope and Jimmy Durante shows and also acted in the movies. He was a radio actor in Chicago before coming here.

Trout, a native of Beardstown, Ill., was graduated from the University of Illinois. He was unmarried. Survivors include his 84-year-old mother, Mrs. Mary Trout.

Blomberg on KFOX Tonight

Sigmund Blomberg, Press-Telegram columnist and memory expert, will be heard tonight at 7:15 over KFOX. Tonight's show will feature several of Blomberg's locally trained students who will demonstrate to radio listeners their recently-developed memory ability.

Another feature of the program will be an audience-participation by telephone. According to Blomberg, several trunk lines into the studio will be open and listeners may call in giving the date and year of any event such as birth, marriage, etc., and Blomberg will attempt to tell (from memory, of course) the exact date of the event on which the date fell. If he fails to name the day correctly, Blomberg promises to award a prize to that listener.

Blomberg will be seen at the Municipal Auditorium, under Press-Telegram sponsorship, in a big free demonstration and memory show at 8 p. m. tomorrow night.
