One reason why some players be unusually careful to try to denever become good on defense is feat the contract. He does not because they always follow too want to lead away from the aceclosely the advice given them when they started to play bridge, such as, "Never lead from an acequeen combination," "Second spade king, and his partner gives hand low," "Don't finesse your him the deuce, he knows that he partner's lead," and so on. Gencomportant he does not because it does not because they are to lead the

He does not want to lead the acc of trumps and give the whole hand up. He cannot lead a dia-mond because South must have the ace of diamonds to justify his opening bid. Now we are down to the ace-queen of clubs combination. West has to hope that his partner has the king of clubs or not more than clubs, so he should lead the ace of clubs.

East puts on the jack, encouraging West to continue. West leads the queen of clubs. South wins with the king and plays the queen of spades, discarding dummy's nine of clubs.

Declarer's next play is the king of hearts. West should go right up with the acc and play the erally it is a good thing to fol-third club. Even though he low these little rules, but a good knows declarer can ruff it in defensive player has to know dummy, he has to take a chance when to break them.

There is no the bid or the bid or the property of the property o There is not much to the bid-er than the eight-spot in order ding in today's hand. West makes to defeat the contract.
