The pieces shown were selected by the curater of Americans. Jack Uhlenhopp stopped the show when he stepped out of the chorus for "if I've a Song." Jack is known to Madison radio listensers as Jack Emery. Strangely enough, he was singing in two places at once Saturday night—Rockford and Madison. Before the left, he recorded a WIBA anniversary program with Marvin Seymour, organist, which went on the air here about the time Jack was singing in "Good for the Girls."

Jack Uhlenhopp stopped the exhibition called "52 Americans Under 36."

The pieces shown were selected by the curator of American art of the Metropolitan in cooperation with Life magazine.
