Keeping Dangerous Opponent Out of Lead Good Strategy

By OSWALD JACOBY Written for NEA Service. SOMETIMES one opponent is more dangerous to you than the other. If the dangerous opponent wins a trick, he may be able to make the killing lead. In such a situation, the hand should be developed so as to keep the dangerous opponent out of the lead. West opened a trump, and South won in his own hand. He saw immediately that East was the dangerous opponent. If East had the chance to lead a club, the enemy might rattle off three club tricks at once. South saw that he would make his contract if East had the ace of clubs, since then there would be no great danger. South would have no trouble, likewise, if West had the king of diamonds, since then an ordinary finesse in that suit would bring the game contract safely home. However, South saw that he could make his contract even if all finesses lost. All he had to do was to keep East from winning a trick. At the second trick, therefore, South led the queen of hearts to dummy's ace. Next he returned the jack of hearts from dummy. South was ready to discard if East played a low heart, but East actually put up the king. Hence South ruffed. Declarer got to dummy by leading a trump to the ten. It could have been pleasant if both opponents had followed, but South could not afford to draw the last trump when East showed out of trumps. Instead he cashed dummy's ten of hearts, discarding a diamond from his own hand. Now he was in position to play the diamonds just as he had played the hearts. He took a diamond ace and led the queen back. He would have thrown a club if East had played a low diamond, but East actually played the king. South therefore ruffed with a high trump, saving one of his low trumps. Declarer could now lead his low trump to dummy's queen and discard two clubs on dummy's remaining high diamonds. Since that left only two clubs in his hand, he was bound to win 11 tricks. South's contract was never in

Lee's Lair Show Changes Format, Adds New Star

Change of format, expansion to a half hour and the addition of a new starring personality in the "Lee's Lair" program on Monday nights over Channel Two (7:00-7:30), have been effected with the signing of solo-singing pianist Matt Dennis. Title and restaurant background wherein Leo Wood and Bill Symes interview visiting sportsworld and other celebrities will be retained in "Lair" but Dennis' unique pianologs and vocalizing of his own songs and other popular numbers will be interpolated under the expanded set-up. Dennis will be presented as a free-wheeling crony of the two "Lair" veterans with free access to the premises, the piano and the provender. Dennis is a recognized professional of the music and performing worlds. He started with Tommy Dorsey as an arranger and music writer, spent more than three years in the Radio Branch of the Air Corps during the last war, and before signing exclusively with Coral Records, he recorded and arranged for Capitol Records. His top selling Capitol discs as a singer were "Buttermilk Sky," "Squeeze Me But Please Don't Tease Me," and "Linda."
