Bloodhound Keeper Flees From Prison

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 10. (AP) The keeper of the bloodhounds at the Tennessee State Prison escaped yesterday, but the bloodhounds couldn't track him down. Charles Lenning, about 30, a trusty serving 12 years for housebreaking and larceny, walked away from his job, guards said. The hounds picked up his trail, all right. But it led to a dead end-Lenning had gotten into a car. He's still at large.

The Story of a Film without Fanfare!

Every year the Farmers and Merchants Bank uses over four miles of film - enough to make three full length Hollywood movies. How is this film used? In keeping with our progressive management policies we have constantly striven to provide added convenience and protection for our depositors during the 43 years we have been serving this community. For the added convenience of our depositors we opened one of the first drive-in banks in the nation nearly 10 years ago at 14th and American.
