Former Dance Star Now Works as Headwaiter

NEW YORK As a featured dancer he earned $1000 a week and more at such places as New York's Central Park Casino, London's Ciro's and Hollywood's Trocadero. That was in 1930 and Peppino D'Alloio was going places, especially after he had been starred in two Columbia films, where critics said that "Peppi" would outdo George Raft as the dancing-lover type.
