ATHENS, Greece—(UP)—Archbishop Spyridon of Athens Sunday reportedly gave his blessing to the marriage of 19-year-old Tassoula Petrakogeorgi, the modern Helen of Troy, and Ocstas Kefaloghianis, the dashing Paris who abducted her 14 days ago.

But a modern Trojan war again threatened Crete, and even Athens, when relatives of the imprisoned Costas whisked the ravenhaired beauty off to a new hiding place and her father vowed vengence for the stain on the family honor.

Costas kidnaped the maiden from in front of a Heraklion movie theater two weeks ago and carried her off to Mt. Ida after Tassoula's father refused to let ping you'nt to her.

What authorities feared most was that an outbreak between the two families may evolve into a much wider political conflict. But Tassoula and Costas, center of the controversy, wanted no part of it.
