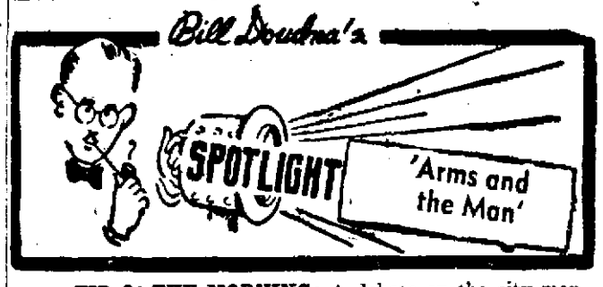
The Orbits

By William Juhre

Bill Doudna's



TIP O' THE MORNING: A debate on the city manager form of goverment, to be held Wednesday night in Turner hall, will be broadcast by WFOW.

• • •

George Bernard Shaw's delightful and ever-fresh spoofing of soldiering, the new-rich, pomposity, and stuffiness—"Arms and the Man"—received a sparkling production, marked by an ingratiating effect of spontaneity, at West high school Thursday night.

Players, Inc., of Washington, D. C., presented the comedy under auspices of the Madison chapter of Blackfriars Guild. The audience was absurdly small—perhaps 300 persons.

If there were nothing else of moment in the evening, the work of Teddy Marie Kinsey would have been sufficiently satisfying. Here was an actress with acumen, humor, and a delicious aptitude for putting the right accent on lines with gesture or inflection.

Versatile too, she is the Lady Macbeth of this company's repertory, and its presentation of "Macbeth" won critics' praise for her work as a tragedienne in Chicago and Milwaukee.

Fifty-six years old, "Arms and the Man" is familiar to most theatergoers either in Shaw's original form or as the basis for the operetta (but not the movie) "The Chocolate Soldier."

It is about a timid professional soldier who hides in a boudoir in enemy territory, is saved by the wife and daughter of an enemy officer, and returns after peace is signed, much to their embarrassment. A counterplot in which a housemaid wins the daughter's fiance helps resolve the main problem.

Carol Anthony played the daughter, using a melodramatic approach which added to the hilarity. June McCormick, who walks like a ballet dancer but who counters her grace with an earthy voice, was the maid.

John Burns, as the soldier, was a matter-of-fact individual, a typical Shavian foil for the foibles which the author satirizes. J. Robert Dietz was the pompous papa, and Henry Sulton the bewildered fiance. Keith Kirby played a plotting manservant with a touch of the sinister, and Frank Dolan completed the cast with a bit as an officer.

Striking lighting effects gave beauty to the simple settings.

Direction of the Rev. Gilbert V. Harke, head of the speech and drama department at Catholic university, kept the play moving at a rapid pace. His decision to overplay the mock melodramatics was a good one, and his ingenuity in staging was apparent throughout.

+ + +

TYPE CASTING: Gloria Holliday, who plays Gloria, the PBX operator on the "Harold Peary Show," formerly worked on the switchboard at CBS, Hollywood. That was before she became Mrs. Peary.

+ + +

CONSERVATIVE ROLE: Myron McCormick, whose dance as the brash Seabee is a highlight of "South Pacific," is playing Albert Chapman, a conservative family man, on "Hilltop House." It's the only regular radio commitment his Broadway schedule allows.

+ + +

HOMBURGER: Jean Hersholt was chosen by the Hat Research foundation to model a black Homburg hat for National Hat Week, Oct. 15-21. He was selected because "he aptly fits the best public conception of a wearer of the Homburg."

Blackwood on Bridge

(By Easley R. Blackwood)

Mr. Champion had most of the cards for the defenders but, believe it or not, it was Mr. Muzzy's play which defeated the contract.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 S	Pass	1 N T	Pass
4 S	All Pass

The opening lead was the six of diamonds and Mr. Champion's jack fell to Miss Brash's ace. Looking the hand over, Miss Brash saw she had just one entry to dummy, the ace of clubs.

She decided not to use that card in order to lead trumps from the board, feeling it might have a more important use later.

Accordingly she banged down the ace and another spade. Mr. Champion won the second spade lead and returned the deuce of diamonds. The hand had looked pretty hopeless to Miss Brash, but here she thought she saw a ray of light.

If the play of the diamond suit were honest, Mr. Muzzy had opened his fourth best, which meant that Mr. Champion was now out of the suit.

Therefore if the opposing clubs lay 3-2 and if the first round of clubs could be ducked into Mr. Champion's hand, there was no return lead he could make which would be damaging.

On regaining the lead the balance of the club suit could be run and the two losing diamonds in the closed hand discarded.

So Miss Brash won with the ace of diamonds and quickly led the deuce of clubs.

But Mr. Muzzy put up the jack of clubs. This was a nasty (and unexpected) turn of events.

Miss Brash was now faced with the choice of letting the jack hold, in which case Mr. Muzzy would undoubtedly cash his two good diamonds, or of giving up all hope of setting up the club suit.

She went up with the ace in dummy on the chance that Mr. Muzzy had started with the doubleton queen-jack.

But when the queen failed to drop on the second lead of clubs, all hope was lost.

"Going up with that jack of clubs was the best defensive play I've ever seen you make, Muzzy," complimented Mr. Champion.

"Sure," said Mr. Muzzy proudly. "I always play the jack to force out an ace."

Mr. Champion hid a smile.

"Well," he said, "I'm glad the result of your play was better than your reason for making it."
