Market Costs Take Third of 'Egg Dollar'

About one-third of the consumer's egg dollar goes to marketing costs. Marketing expenses are the big item in the cost of eggs, W. P. Mortenson, farm economist at the University of Wisconsin, explains in a new bulletin issued jointly by state universities in Minnesota, Michigan, and Wisconsin with the United States department of agriculture.

In America Today's Employee Can Become Tomorrow's Employer

Listen to: MRS. HERBERT LOUCKS 219 Clifford Court on WIBA at 7:45 P.M. TONIGHT—NOVEMBER 1 and hear some important facts about the Taft-Hartley law.

It is interesting that Congress, with a Democrat majority has not repealed this law. Furthermore, it has not permitted the Republican-sponsored amendments to come out of Committee—WHY?

Because President Truman has used it—and the Democrats want to keep on using it—as a campaign issue!

Two Milwaukee GIs Listed as Casualties

Two Milwaukee servicemen were listed as casualties in the Korean war in a defense department report issued late Tuesday.

In the army was Corp. Robert D. Malkiewicz, son of Henry Malkiewicz, Milwaukee, listed as killed in action and previously reported missing in action.

In the navy was Herber Boettcher, storekeeper third class, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Boettcher, Milwaukee.

POTLUCK SUPPER
A potluck supper and square dancing will be featured at the meeting at 6:15 p. m. Saturday in the Women's bldg., 240 W. Gilman st., of the Capital City Council No. 126 of the United Commercial Travellers (UCT), Anthony C. Heim, senior counselor, said Tuesday.

TIP O' THE MORNING: Madison's Grieg Male chorus will sing on WIBA and WIBA-FM at 7 p. m. Sunday.

If the rest of the season keeps the high level of the first concert, Madison's schedule of civic music will bear out the promise of a gala celebration of its silver jubilee.

Conductor Walter Heermann's amazing collection of students, teachers, housewives, professional musicians, and singers and players from other walks of life—with the assistance of two visiting soloists—gave an exciting program Tuesday night in the Masonic auditorium.

These men and women made up the Madison Civic Symphony orchestra and Madison Civic chorus and from the national anthem, in which the audience joined, to the rousing "Polonaise" from Tchaikowsky's "Eugene Onegin," they produced a satisfying evening of music as well as a demonstration of what an understanding conductor can do with a diversified group whose members become, for the time, unified in intent.

The program included the first American performance of a work by a Madison composer—Prof. Oskar F. L. Hagen. It was his "Concerto Grosso," with a string quartet, horns, trumpets, and tympani, comprising the miniature orchestra set against the larger one in this form of music.

On the whole, it was good listening, although at times (particularly in the "Bourree") it seemed to depart considerably from the traditional method of the form. It had a lovely "Siciliano," a melody-filled "Airs," and a march which was usually stirring and which ended the work with a flashing climax.

Helen Boatwright, soprano, displayed a dynamic and beautifully handled voice in two arias, one from "The Magic Flute" and another from "Eugene Onegin," and joined Marian Austin, contralto, in a duet from the Tchaikowsky 722 Brittingham pl.; and Richard E. Raabe, 204 N. Murray st.

Authorized and paid for by the Citizens' Committee—Marshall F. Browne for Assemblyman, John Brichouse, 1926 Winnebago Street, Madison, secretary-treasurer.

prised the second half of the concert. Miss Austin has a wealth of tonal beauty; we can hope that she returns to give more of this mere sample of her singing. Together, they were a well-matched duo. The chorus, too, appeared successfully in the "Eugene Onegin" music. Joseph Bloodgood's tenor voice was an asset in an incidental solo.

DISC OF THE DAY: "Don't Ever Leave Me" and "It's Love," recorded by Toni Arden with Percy Faith's orchestra (Columbia). An international disc—the first sung from France. Both are ballads, the latter a frothy thing.

7 City Men Honored as ROTC Students

Seven Madison men are among the 43 "distinguished military students" in the University of Wisconsin Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC). Col. W. G. Skelton, commandant of the army ROTC unit, announced Tuesday.

They are John R. Reynolds, 150 Lakewood blvd., John L. Stedman, 2450 Commonwealth ave., Steven T. Clark, 2709 Sommers ave., Lowell F. Hodgson, 1221 Rutledge st., Kenneth A. Lagoni, 827 E. Gorham st., Richard C. Wagner, 722 Brittingham pl.; and Richard E. Raabe, 204 N. Murray st.
