Orpheum

FEATURE: Let's Dance.
TYPE: Musical.

CAST: Don Elwood, Fred Astaire, Kitty Everett, Betty Hutton, Mr. Postwistle, Roland Young.

REVIEWER: Wally Wikoff.

STORY: An old song dance act breaks up in London during the war and Kitty, who had married a flier, goes to live with the sedate Boston grandmother of her husband. The flier gets shot down, Kitty gets fed up with high society and flees, with the bumps into her old dancing partner, Don Elwood, who is down in his luck, too. Enter the willfulness, Great-grandma Everett and a couple of legal stooges to take Richard Everett VII back. And, being on a musical, the whole thing ends on an elaborate stage with every one's personality changed for the better.

HIGH POINTS: The saloon dance routine of Betty Hutton and Fred Astaire... Miss Hutton's superior comedy ability... a few hearty laughs scattered along the line.

LOW POINTS: Too much melodrama and too little song and dance; there's something to be said for the musical without a plot... the sameness of Astaire's "dream" dance.

VERDICT: Quite entertaining but well below the old Astaire films. Miss Hutton pulls it up more than anyone.

Peace Pickets Greet Churchill with Leaflets

LONDON — (AP) — Winston Churchill was showered with leaflets reading "bring our boys home" as he left his house for Thursday's foreign affairs debate in the house of commons.

Two women threw the leaflets, which read:

"Bring our boys home. We refuse to let our sons and brothers freeze and die for MacArthur or anyone else. We demand peace. No British lads as cannon fodder. Cease fire in Korea—now."

The leaflets were signed "The Mothers of British Conscripts committee."

Churchill asked, "What's all this?"

He was hustled to his car. No arrests were made.
