Czechs Record Their Music

By WILLIAM L. DOUDNA (State Journal Music Editor) Music of Czechoslovakia, performed by musicians of that country, predominates in current release by Mercury Records. Among the LP discs are several works of Janacek, the man who is coming to be recognized as the third of his country's great composers; the others, of course, are Dvbrak and Smetana.

Janacek's music is sometimes easy listening, sometimes on the difficult side. But it is always bright and interesting, and, in his "Lach Dances," flashing and brilliant and rhythmic. Mixed with this set (performed by the Czechoslovak Symphony orchestra under K. B. Jirik) is Martinu's "Sinfonietta Giocosa," played by Germaine Leroux, pianist, and the Czech Philharmonic orchestra under J. Krombholc. This, too, is exuberant music, except for one quiet section, performed with gaiety and sparkle.

Janacek's "Youth" wind sextet is backed by the charming incidental music written by Bartok for "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme." The sextet reflects a side of Janacek's nature different from the "Lach Dances."

Other recent Mercury releases: "Slavonic Dances, Opus 46 and Opus 72," Dvorak, re-conquered by the FOK Symphony orchestra of Prague under K. B. Jirik... Two 12-inch LP discs. The two sets were written 10 years apart, and the orchestra gives them all the composer's rich feeling for rhythm and the coloring available in a symphony orchestra.

"Great Keyboard Masterpieces," recorded by Abram Chasins... "Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue in D Minor," Bach; "Fantasia in C Minor," Mozart; "Rhapsody in B Minor," "Rhapsody in G Minor," and "Rhapsody in E Flat," Brahms—all on a 12-inch LP record.

Victoria, and Viadana were recorded at a public performance in the Hollywood Bowl three years ago. Theirs musical splendor on this 12-inch LP. "A Flute Recital," recorded by Jean-Pierre Rampal with Robert Veyron-Lacaze, pianist... This 12-inch LP disc holds Bach's "Sonata in A Minor for Solo Flute," a comparatively recent discovery regarded by Dr. Alfred Einstein as authentic; Beethoven's "Sonata in B-Flat for Flute and Piano," an early work rediscovered in this century; Honnegger's "Danse de la Chevre"; Roussel's "Andante and Scherzo for Flute and Piano"; Dukas' "La Plainte au Loup de Faune," dedicated to Debussy and arranged by Samazeuilh; Hindemith's "Sonata for Flute and Piano"...

"Quintet in A Major for Piano and Strings," Dvorak, recorded by Jan Herman and the Ondricka quartet... This work, played twice in the last twelvemonth by the Pro Arle quartet and Louise Lockwood Carpenter, is pleasant listening, even in the plaintive "Dumka." "Polkas for Piano," Smetana, recorded by six Czech pianists... Most of these are flashing dances, some are idealizations of the form. All are brilliantly played by Maxian, Setkova, Kundera, Rauch, Herman, Polivka.

"11 Chorale Preludes for Organ," Brahms, recorded by Ernest White at the Organ of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York... This is the first complete recording of these works, written in the composer's last year, after the death of Clara Schumann, and regarded as among the "most significant writing for the instrument during the century and a half after the death of J. S. Bach." White plays with great dignity, touched with affection. The organ itself has been described as "one of the finest modern instruments in existence."

"Symphony No. 6," Schubert, recorded by the Bavarian Radio orchestra under Alfons Dressel... This symphony is, for the most part, sheer beauty, and the recording is first-rate. "Bohemian Dances," Smetana, recorded by four Czech pianists—Rauch, Maxian, Herman, and Vondrovic... Four polkas and 10 other dances make up this series in which the goal "is that of Chopin in the mazurka and the polonaise patterns of Poland... seeking to spiritualize the dance rhythms of Bohemia."

Tibetians Have Odd Customs

What would you think if you entered a strange village, and the people in the streets started to clap their hands? Perhaps you would feel like a "conquering hero," but that would be an error if you were in Tibet. During the second World War, an American airplane made a forced landing in Tibet. The six men on the plane were able to step out and walk, and they headed for the nearest village. When they reached it, they saw people in the streets and each one was clapping. After getting back home safely, those American told their friends how glad they felt to have the people greet them in that way. Soon, however, they discovered their mistake. After doing a bit of clapping, the Tibetans walked or ran into their homes! The aviators learned that the natives were afraid. The visitors had come down from the sky, and it appeared to be evil spirits in human form! The Tibetans clapped their hands "to keep the devils at a distance." Tibet is a backward country, and not many airplanes have crossed it. The people in that village may never have seen an airplane up to the time the Americans arrived. For many years it has been a rule in Tibet that a foreign visitor must show a pass, signed by a high officer of the country, before being given food or lodging. A Tibetan past could expect to be punished. That is one reason why so few travelers have managed to make the rounds of Tibet. To carry food and tents into the country is a hard task. No railway trains are ready to take visitors to Lhasa, the capital city. To walk, or to ride on the back of a yak, means slow progress.
