TIP OF THE MORNING: Clara Bow's autobiography, "This Is It," will stir up nostalgia in the spring, when Simon and Schuster will publish it (no pun).

The opening game of the Madison Industrial league's season, with Bowman Dairy meeting Badger Sports, will be broadcast at 8 p. m. Sunday by WFOV.

The station will carry one game each week, selecting the outstanding battle of the seven-day period.

NEW BOOK: Publishers' announcements for summer list a new book by Ralph McCause, of the University of Wisconsin extension division and Robert L. Ramsay, professor of English at the University of Missouri.

The volume, published by Bookman Associates of New York City, is "Waters Over Linn Creek Town." It is narrative by McCause described as "An Ozark Rhyming Chronicle," with an essay on regionalism, by Ramsay, as an introduction.

The latter is widely known here, especially for his summer sessions at Linn Creek town. It attempts to memorialize the creek valley and old town now forever gone, while at the same time it celebrates the physical transformation, truly epic, of a well known Middle Western area.

COSMOPOLIS: A bus load of "Cosmopolis," members of the women's auxiliary of the Cosmopolitan club of Milwaukee, will be in Madison today to visit the Unitarian church, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright. They will go then to Wright's home and school, Talladega, near Spring Green. The group also will visit Wright-designed homes at Middleton (Herbert Jacobs) and Jefferson (Smith).

SHAKESPEARE: Stanley Karls, 517 Gannon ave., played Malvolio in a production of "12th Night" at Central State Teachers college, Stevens Point, last week. Karls, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Karls, is a 1949 graduate of Edgewood high school.

BANQUET: The Mozart club, second oldest musical organization in the city, will hold its 50th anniversary banquet at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday in Guild hall of Grace Episcopal church.

New Mozart club officers are: Harry A. Farina, president; Anthony Reagan, vice-president; William J. Olson, secretary; Robert S. Toepfer, treasurer; Ben Leith, librarian; William W. Morris, historian, and Stan Ballette.

Women Voters to Meet May 15 at Lake Delton

The Wisconsin League of Women Voters will open its two-day 23rd annual convention May 15 at Lake Delton with a report from a national officer of the organization.

Mrs. Eugene Burgess, Minneapolis, a member of the national board of directors, will speak on the growth of the league as a national organization.

Delegates from 23 state units will attend the convention and choose an action program and make a budget for organization.

Legislative reapportionment and civil liberties also will be highlighted on the program.

Truck Driver Survives Crash, 20-Foot Plunge

CHICAGO — (UP) — Jesse Reid, a truck driver, figured that maybe Providence lent a slightly helping hand when he was driving a heavily loaded trailer truck.

His truck skidded, careened into a telephone pole, crashed through an overpass guard rail, flipped over on its side, and plunged 20 feet to the ground below the overpass.

Reid crawled out, brushed himself off, and walked away, unharmed.

ART EXHIBIT: A one-man exhibition of drawings, lithographs, wood engravings, and water color by Ed Green opened Monday in the galleries at Elizabeth Waters hall, women's dormitory at the University of Wisconsin.

The artist, a university graduate student from Milwaukee, served in the navy before entering the university in 1947. A former chairman of the Wisconsin Union Gallery committee, he was represented by work in the recent Wisconsin Salon of Art, Madison Artist's exhibition, and 23rd annual Student Art show.

"His works have found favor with artist and layman alike, a quality rarely found today," says an announcement. "The water colors are clear and bright; they might be called a delightful experience in pure painting. While little attention is paid to fussy detailing, there is, nevertheless, a strong feeling of draftsmanship as well as more painterly qualities throughout the exhibit."
