In answer to the question, "What will television do to network radio?", one of the leading agencies had this to say after making a survey of the advertising field. Meredith Willson, who has been visiting in New Fork, says that radio felk there are convinced that

These who anticipate . . . a blackout of radio listening, magazine and newspaper reading, and other leisure time activities at the hand of television are due for a disappointment. "Without detracting in the least from the impast of television, we can conclude that other activities are far from dead.

"As for radio, 67 per cent of those in television homes listen to the radio as compared with 67 per cent listening to radio in non-television homes. "Despite this decrease in homes which have television sets, those who listen to their home receivers devote an average of two hours and 10 minutes 4. day to this (radio) leisure-time activity."

Writing in "Sponsor" magazine, Pres. Ben Duffy.

of the same agency said:
"It is true, perhaps, when television reaches out, into every market, that network radio at night may be seriously affected. But this situation does not pray.

Looking ahead, he pointed out that the value of television advertising will be somewhat dependent upon its cost. "If television costs get out of line" there may be a shift back to radio or the advertising tollar will go to other media." It is true that fewer AM stations went on the air in 1950 than in any year since 1943. But listen to this: the total number of FM stations increased by 26 during the year, according to the 1951 Radio Anonyal and Television Year Book, just issued.

Tor those who worry about television's taking over the radio field completely, there should be a reminder that, so far, TV lacks the portability of radio. And in 1950, manufacturers produced 1, 674,000 wholly portable radios and 4,740,600 automobile receiving sets.
