33 Roof of mouth 49 Massachusetts One experiment indicates yes. Seven tests were given to 52 psychology students. Before the tests each was asked how well he or she expected to do. After the tests, each was asked to estimate grades. The striking thing was that women estimated more accurately than men what they could do before the test and how well they had done after the tests. The men showed "conspicuous overvaluations" cient Egyptians were a very happy people, especially in the gay city of Thebes—the Paris of that time.
