NORTH (D) 15 | wink? He certainly was. But he could have made the contract by simply finessing dummy's jack of hearts. EAST ♠ J 8 ♡ None ♦987532

This play would obviously win as the cards lay, but it would also succeed even if East were able to win the first trump trick. That would leave only one trump out, which dummy could later pick up with the acc.

In the meantime, what could East do to threaten the contract? If the defenders took the ace of clubs, South would have a wealth of discards for his low spades. If they failed to take the ace of clubs, South could proceed with his discarding plan. The important point was to take the trump finesse as a safety measure against a 3-0 trump Veteran players often do this break.
