He Who Burns Trash Burns Lots of Cash

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (U.P.)—An old mattress being burned with other trash turned out to be full of "hot" money.

The mattress was among some odds and ends of furniture owned by a livery stable proprietor who died in 1940.

The Providence Boys Club bought the property recently and began to burn the rubble. The mattress was smoldering when four laborers passed through the yard. One kicked the mattress and out fell a bundle of old-style gold notes. They tore apart the mattress and found other bills tied in a sock, some in a handkerchief. Tom Tisdell, Boys Club superintendent, estimated the total might have been $3,000.

But nobody ever will know, for the laborers left with the money.

My friend Howard Dietz is famous in Hollywood, on Broadway, and in operatic circles for his ability to weave a plot or write a song that will drag in the paying customers.

Hence when he tells a bridge story about the good old days I listen and enjoy myself without worrying too hard about the truth of the tale.

"West bid a spade on this hand just to keep the conversation going," said Dietz. "He wanted to make sure that the hand wasn't played at one heart."

We all agreed that West had acted against this great danger with a praiseworthy sense of duty.

"When East bid four spades, it was clear to North that the opponents must hold nine spades between them. Therefore he jumped to seven hearts at his next turn."

"West suspected what was going on largely because his partner had not sacrificed at seven spades. Therefore he inserted a penalty double."

"Now it was South's turn to rely on the opponents to hold nine spades between them. If North had a void in spades there would be a magnificent play for seven hearts. Therefore South redoubled."

West led his singleton spade and the defenders collected a mere 2800 points. Not a bad result on those cards, is it?

We all agreed that West had managed to beat par for the hand. "I suppose you were West, Howard?" I asked, carefully keeping skepticism out of my voice.

"No," Dietz replied ruefully. "I was North. That's why I'm so conservative these days."

Who knows? Maybe it all happened just the way Dietz tells it. At any rate, his partner, Sherman Stearns, tells it the same way.

Incidentally, don't be led astray by the success of West's psychic bid of one spade. Such bids are madness for beginners, dangerous for average players, and risky even for the greatest experts.

Today's hand is presented for amusement rather than instruction.

2nd HIT — "PREHISTORIC WOMEN"

(Written by Junior Red Cross)

Students elected to represent their school or youth organization on the Madison Youth Council for the '51-'52 season attended their first meeting on June 5. JRC members appointed to represent and interpret the Junior Red Cross program on the Youth Council are Barbara Bruley, East; Tom Consigney, West; Darlene Gillette, Central; and Bill Mansfield, West.

These students were selected because of the interest they have shown in both the JRC program and community projects.

Recently several articles have been appearing in newspapers and magazines concerning juvenile delinquency and stressing the responsibility of parents in guiding their children through the "stormy" period of adolescence.

It is refreshing at a time when parents are hearing the brunt of criticism for "delinquent" youth to read an adolescent's view of youth and home responsibility.

Audrey Braske, Pulaski High school student from Milwaukee, attended the Midcentury Whitehouse Conference on Children and Youth in Washington and she participated in a panel discussion on youth and home responsibility at the Governor's Conference in Madison a month ago.

The following is Audrey's view of one phase of this "stormy" period:

"Some young people seem to feel that the success or failure of family life is no concern of theirs. This is not true. Regardless of how capable a leader may be, no undertaking in business or in any field of endeavor can be really successful without good teamwork.

"It is the same in family life. If every member of the family does his share, there is greater efficiency, less fatigue, less irritation, a fairer division of work, and a better chance for all to enjoy life.

"Assuming responsibility in the home may be quite as much a matter of eliminating work as of helping with it. The person who has to be called three or four times and even then may not get up in the morning, who is often late to meals, who leaves his pajamas on the bedroom floor and never cleans the room he has helped to dirty, makes extra work for other mem-

Higher Education Out for Barber Licenses

LANSING, Mich. (U.P.) — A bill was considered in the Michigan state senate recently which would have required that applicants for barber's licenses have at least a 10th grade education.

State Sen. Frank Heath of Bay City objected to the provision, however.

"All it would do," Heath said, "is raise the level of conversation in Michigan's barber shops."

Modern Buildings Are Shelters from A-Bombs, Expert Says

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor)

NEW YORK (U.P.) — You can survive an atom bomb, even when directly under it, if you are inside the lower floors of a modern building.

In Hiroshima, the first atom-bombed city, 1,200 Japanese did so survive.

This report was made Sunday by Dr. L. W. Tuttle, of the division of biology and medicine, U. S. Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), to the opening session of the Institute of Food Technologists.

"We should be encouraged," he said, "by the knowledge that in the city of Hiroshima, a city of fifty structures with only a handful of modern buildings, there were 1,200 survivors within the thousand-yard radius, the so-called zone of total destruction, directly under the burst.

"This attack was made upon a completely unaltered, undisciplined city at the peak of the morning rush hour, and those who survived, for the most part, were persons who just happened to be in the lower stories or basements of the few modern, reinforced concrete structures in the city.

"Let us note that a point only a few hundred yards from the bomb itself one foot of concrete will protect against the blast and heat effects of the bomb, and a foot of concrete plus the equivalent of four or five feet of earth will afford complete protection also against the radiation (radioactive rays) from a bomb.

"From these facts we can conclude that persons in a modern city who have time to get into the subways or the basements of reinforced concrete buildings have a good-to-excellent chance of surviving with no injuries at all even within a few hundred yards of ground zero.

"Persons who may be in any but the top half dozen stories of modern buildings and who are in the inner corridors will have a fair-to-good chance of surviving with non-disabling injuries."
