Four men famed for their work with bands will be in Madison this week to show Wisconsin band leaders how they work. They will speak and offer demonstrations during the Band Directors con-ference which begins today at the University of Wisconsin. The session, part of the 22nd annual summer music clinic, will close Friday.

They are Hal Bergan, supervisor of band music at Sexton high school, Lansing, Mich.; Forrest Buchtel, director of instrumental music at Amundsen high school and staff instructor at the Vander Cook College of Music, Chicago; George "Red" Bird, conductor of the Cleveland Browns marching band, and Fred Weber, director of instrumental music in the Michigan City, Ind., public schools.

Bergan is considered one of the leading experts in the nation on problems of the marching band. Producer of the first set of marching band training films, he has written "Band Formations" and "Band Pageantry." And has served on staffs of clinics and festivals around the country. On Tuesday, he will demonstrate the use of films and marching books in band

Buchtel has been guest instruc tor at the University of Nebraska and Michigan State college and has written compositions for all classes of U. S. school bands. He will explain problems in instru-mental music from the composer's standpoint and will hold a reading rehearsal with the All-Star band Wednesday.

Educated at Cincinnati's university, conservatory, and college of music, Bird has supervised music in high schools at Trotwood, Dayton, and Massillon, O. In 1946 he was named entertainment director for the Cleveland Browns football team. He developed the Majorettes, a group of 24 girls trained to march and dance in precision while playing. He will discuss "Marching with Music" Wednes-
