Bill Doulna's SPOTLIGHT Shakespeare at the Union

TIP O' THE MORNING: Friends hear that Dr. and Mrs. Sigfrid Prager expect to visit in Madison this fall.

Shakespearean plays always attract large audiences when they are produced by Wisconsin Players...

The reason is the imaginative direction of Prof. Ronald Mitchell, who turned one of the playwright's least-performed comedies...

The sprightliness was Shakespeare's, but the intelligibility was Mitchell's, for only by judicious trimming...

This was the Bard's first excursion into topical comedy for gentlemen. Many of his characters were caricatures of contemporary figures...

"Love's Labour's Lost" has a simple plot, involving four men pledged to three years of celibacy and four women who make them regret their vows...

A wholly competent cast carried the slim plot rapidly along in its sparkling verse, letting the poetry swing the audience with its rhythm.

Peter Campanelli was a handsome and sincere king, Kenneth Abrahamson a cynical and argumentative Berowne...

As for the women, the roles of the lovely princess and her three ladies were played with wit and
