WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. (UP)
Federal agents, armed with a stiff new law aimed at narcotics peddlers, began today a nation-wide roundup of drug peddlers.
Narcotics Commissioner Harry J. Anslinger predicted the new legislation will result in a "notice-able decline" in illegal drugs traffic within six months.
Anslinger's agents started their drive against drug peddlers at midnight, only a few hours after President Truman signed a law providing that "repeat" offenders must serve full prison terms with no probation or suspended sentences. The new law also provides prison sentences of as long as 20 years for third-time offenders.

Narcotics agents swung into act.

Narcotics agents swung into action against known peddlers in several cities. Anslinger refused to identify these localities because it would have tipped off the peddlers.

The new law provides a fine of up to $2000 and a sentence of not less than two nor more than five years for a first offense. The peddlers.

"All I can say now is that the drive is on," Anslinger said. "We'd rather have this law than a thousand others."

Anslinger said his agents have "had the finger" on many peddlers for some time, "but waited until the stiff sentence law was all set."

years for a first offense. The previous maximum fine was $5000, with no minimum term and a maximum sentence of 10 years.

Second offenders now will be fined the maximum $2000 and sent to jail not less than five years nor more than 10. A third offender faces the $2000 fine and 10 to 20 years in prison.

He said 87 new narcotics agents 10 to 20 years in prison.
