BOTH musical and engineering skills are involved in "Pipes and Platters," heard at 10:30 a. m. Mondays and Fridays over WHA and the state FM network.

In its simplest terms, the show is a 15-minute period of "live" organ music and recorded selections, presented without any breaks between numbers. Don Voegeli, musical director of the station, is the organist and Mo Mead is the engineer.

But there's nothing simple about building the program.

The most difficult feat is finding records which are exactly in tune with the studio organ. While all instruments are pitched to play "A" at 440 vibrations per second, differences in recording speeds cause variances in pitch. (Try it on your own phonograph; spin a record at normal speed, then slow it a bit with your forefinger and note the change in pitch).

DON VOEGELI

Out of every eight or nine records chosen as possibilities for the program, only four may be in tune with the organ, Voegeli says.

After the suitable records are chosen, Voegeli writes the title, key, timing, and a bit of the melody of each selection.

As the program goes on the air, Don (equipped with headphones) sits at the organ and Mead at the controls and turntables. Voegeli plays the theme, works it into a suggestion of the melody on the first record, then modulates into the key of the opening bars. He signals the engineer to start the disc, and the "live" and waxed music blend, with the organ gradually fading out.

Occasionally, Voegeli plays along with the record, adding bits of musical figures. As each nears its end, he moves in with it, and creates a transition to the next record as the first one ends.

It's quite a feat, and done so well that one can scarcely detect the transitions as they begin and end.

• • •

DISC OF THE DAY: Tony Bennett seems to have another hot one in "Since My Love Has Gone," based on a Verdi melody. The second side is "Silly Dreamer," an intimate ballad. Percy Faith's orchestra handles both backings with good taste. (Columbia).

• • •

AT SUN PRAIRIE: Entertainment in a night club atmosphere (minus smoking and liquor) will be offered at the Sun Prairie high school gym Thursday night. Instead of its usual concert, the high school band will present "The Prairie High Varieties of 1952," with the audience at tables around a dance floor.

Ice cream, pop, cake, and coffee will be sold, with members of the Junior band as waiters and waitresses and members of the Band Mothers club preparing the orders. There will be no cover, minimum, nor admission charge.

Mark Glynn will be master of ceremonies, introducing dancers, singers, and instrumentalists. A high school group will play for dancing.

• • •

GIMBEL SHOW: Departing from tradition, the 1952 Gimbel Wisconsin art competition will not commission 1951 prize-winners to paint for the new collection, Charles Zadok, general manager of Gimbels, has announced. The 1952 competition will be limited to oils, he said.

Gimbels will buy 12 pictures at $300 each from an open field of artists, and in addition will give prizes of $600, $400, and $200, and 12 honorable mention awards of $50 each.

The 1952 theme will be "Wisconsin Artists' View of 1952."

✦ ✦ ✦

FILM FARE: Edith Gwynn, State Journal correspondent writes from Hollywood . . .

Ginger Rogers is mulling the offer to warble for a bunch of Columbia records. (She'll have to go some to top Jane Wyman's wonderful waxing "debut").

Mona Knox and Bruce Cabot are co-starring in "The Perfect Gentleman" for Review Prod.

Spike Jones confides he's building a new "musical" instrument for his band. It's a harp—that not only contains a soft-drink machine, but shoots forth ping-pong balls besides!

Patrice Wymore, currently toiling with Randy Scott in "The Man with a Gun," may not know it yet, but Warners are high on this gal. They're already plotting to raise her to full stardom in "Chorine" — a dramatic musical in which she'd play a hard-boiled chorus girl. Mentioning "Man with a Gun" reminds us that its filming is furnishing a typical "Hollywood oddity". They're using more people in this story of Los Angeles in the year 1850 than was actually the population of this city at the time! Census says there were 1,610 residents then in L. A.—but counting the cast, extras and crew, over 1,700 people contribute to the movie!

Robert Taylor's current siege at the Cedars of Lebanon hospital isn't as slight as supposed. He'll spend the next several days in traction because of serious sacroiliac injury. His next film will have to wait 'til he's in shape. It is "Eagle on His Cap"—a yarn about the atom bomb.

Wauwatosa Man Heads List of 3 for Mayor's Aide Post

Hugh D. Ingersoll, 36, Wauwatosa, headed a list of three top ranking candidates for the $6,000 position of administrative assistant to Mayor George Forster, certified by the city personnel board Monday.

The certifications followed final oral interviews with 13 candidates, held last weekend.

Second on the list is John W. Short III, 26, Kansas City, Mo., and third is John A. Gronouski Jr., 31, of 2418 Chamberlain ave.

All three are World War II veterans and Short received five additional preference points for partial disability.

Ingersoll, Madison born, a graduate of Madison West High in 1933 and the University of Wisconsin, in 1937, is the son of L. R. Ingersoll, 1933 West Lawn ave., emeritus professor of physics at the university.

He received his bachelor's degree in economics at Wisconsin and an M. S. degree in public administration at Syracuse university.

During the war he was base statistical officer at Mather Field, Calif. He is now budget officer of the Veterans Administration regional office in Milwaukee.

Short, born in Galena, Ill., is a University of Missouri graduate in public administration. He is now with the cost accounting department in Kansas City, and also served as an administrative research assistant in the city's public works department.

Gronouski, a graduate of Oshkosh State Teachers college and the University of Wisconsin, is now working toward his PhD. in public finance at the university after having served as an assistant professor and a teaching assistant in money and banking, and in elementary economics.

Forster said Monday that he probably will study the qualifications of the three certified candidates several days before making his selection.

Reque's Marine Store Damaged by Blaze

Reque's Marine Service, 631 Williamson st., was damaged Monday by fire which started in drain oil that had been poured over stoker coal in a wooden hopper, firemen reported.

The flames spread to rubbish behind the furnace boiler at the rear of the one-story building and blazed up into ceiling joists. Asst. Fire Chief William Lynaugh said about a 25-foot-square area of the ceiling was burned.

Canvas covers on two of several boats which were stored on ceiling rafters, were ignited by the flames but none of the boats was damaged, Lynaugh reported.

Firemen from No. 1 and 2 companies spent an hour and 12 minutes at the scene after being called shortly before 10 a.m.
