Cross-Section of Today's Art

By Leonard Good

Assistant Professor of Art Education, Art continues to prow more hospitable every withing the every wind artistic expression was limited to a few officially and provides. This broad diversity of tastes puzzles many observers who remember when artistic expression was limited to a few officially and provided subjects and standard treatments. Now almost everything goes into art's teeming domain, and very little of it comes out looking or meaning anything like it did when it went in. This is noticeably true in the 13th annual exhibition sponsored by the Madison Art asson. Over hiddled to the provided expression of vocational school show recent trends in painting, grapics, sculpture, and ceramics.
