Brucellosis Held Danger to Workers in Dairy Industry

By DR. CARL N. NEIPERT
 (State Health Officer)

Brucellosis is one of the occupational hazards of people who have contact with farm animals, particularly farmers, veterinarians, butchers, and packing house employees, although the disease can be contracted by anyone who handles unpasteurized milk from an animal affected with Bang's disease.

With the busiest days ahead in rural Wisconsin, farmers can protect themselves by learning the precautions that help to prevent this disease that spreads to man from cattle, hogs, or goats.

Although 146 cases of brucellosis were reported in the state last year, it is difficult to estimate how many mild unrecognized cases might exist because such cases are not easy to diagnose.

Farmers can determine if there is a risk of this disease for themselves or their families by having veterinarians test their cattle.

The State Department of Agriculture has an active program which farmers should take advantage of to help eliminate brucellosis.

Physicians have found that some of the newer drugs are highly effective in treating people and curing the disease much more quickly than formerly.

With proper medical treatment, it need not be a chronic disease that results in financial loss as well as physical disability to the farmer.

Brucellosis doesn't pass from man to man. It is contracted from infected animals.

Although pasteurizing milk prevents its transmission and washing hands thoroughly a further contact with animals is a good preventive measure, the most effective control must start with the cattle.

More information on this phase is available through the State and U. S. Departments of Agriculture.

STILL GRATEFUL

GRAPEVINE, Tex. — (UP) — Albert H. Graves, a veteran of both world wars, finally got a medal from one of them—33 years late.

A citation of gratitude was signed by the president of France and the mayor of Saint-Mihiel. A letter explained that Graves was one of 100 Texans selected to receive the medal for liberating the French city during a bitter World War I battle.

Bill Doukna's SPOTLIGHT 'American Forum'

TIP O' THE MORNING: Next week, WIBA-FM will play request numbers on its three-hour afternoon shows.

THEODORE GRANIK'S "American Forum of the Air" will begin its 25th radio year Sunday, April 27. The oldest discussion program in broadcasting, the Forum is heard at 1:30 p. m. Sundays over NBC-WIBA.

In its 24-year history, the Forum has welcomed more than 90 per cent of the members of congress and two men who later became president—Franklin D. Roosevelt, then governor of New York, and Harry S. Truman, then a senator. Congressmen have dubbed the program their "unofficial congress" and often use it as a testing ground for proposed legislation.

An example of this occurred when Roosevelt's plan for swapping old U. S. destroyers for British bases was first presented to the public on a Forum broadcast.

In addition to the thousands of political issues discussed on the Forum, its list of topics also includes many controversial subjects such as "What's Wrong with College Football?" "Why Are Food Prices So High?" "Should Congress Investigate Boxing?" and "Should West Point Be Abolished?"

In selecting topics for discussion, producer Ted Granik has often unintentionally gained an inside track to some of Washington's top secrets. For example, several weeks before V-J Day, Granik scheduled a debate for Aug. 14 on the subject, "What Should We Do With Japan after We Win the War?" He then telephoned the state department to ask if they would supply Granik's plans to state heard of the secretary of state, heard of Granik's plans to state heard of the secretary of state, heard of Granik's plans to state heard of the secretary of state.

At the same time, Granik was studying law nights at St. John's university and he persuaded the faculty members to start a program called "Law for the Layman" on WGBS. Granik served as moderator, and the show was such a success that when the station was sold, WGBS invited him to bring it to that station. He did, and one of his first programs there was a debate on prohibition between Representative Emanuel Celler of New York and the late Mrs. Ella Boole, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Mrs. Bounding came excited and made front-page accusations which made front-page news the next day. With this program, Ted Granik's "American Forum of the Air" was born.

RADIO COMPETITION: Madison is the center for judging of children's out-of-school programs in the exhibition of recordings at the 22nd annual Institute for Education by Radio and Television, now being held in Columbus, O.

Osborn, formerly of the University of Buffalo school of education, and Dr. Hanla Ris, pediatrician. Leslie Spence was coordinator.

THE MAIL BAG: A letter from Karl Andersen, Lake Mills. "We might be in sympathy with Mr. Betts' complaints, which you duly publicized, if his interests weren't quite so narrow.

"Does he want nothing but sports, news broadcasts (it doesn't take many of these to be as repetitive as soap opera), and alleged comedians?"

"Why did you both ignore WHA entirely? FM isn't so expensive; why doesn't he give that a try? It

Civil Defense Making Gains, Caldwell Reports

WASHINGTON — America's civil defense program is forcing Russia to build "two A-bombs where they built one before," Civil Defense Administrator Millard Caldwell said Thursday.

He made the statement in a message to the annual convention here of the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE).

Caldwell praised all information outlets, particularly newspapers, for a "magnificent" job that he said has made the American people "far better informed" about civil defense today than they were a year ago.

"Thousands of Americans, particularly in our critical target cities, have learned the simple basic facts of survival," he said.

Alfred Sessler, Peter Sinclair, James Wachholz, John Wildo, Santos Zingale, James A. Schwabach, Dorothy Zupanchich, Donald Anderson, and Fuller Griffith, Artists of nearby communities are Raymond Gloeckler, Tomah, and Robert Nelson, Okeo.
