

TIP O' THE MORNING: Jose Ferrer tells friends here that he will not be able to address the children's theater conference in August because he'll be in Europe on a directing chore.

CHILDREN who saw "The Secret Garden" at the Capitol theater Tuesday appeared to like most of the play, in spite of a script which had far too much talk and far too little action, even for the average adult.

The situation was saved largely by two competent actresses—Dora Dickey, as 12-year-old Mary Lennox, and Dorette Wilder, as the maid Martha (and, the kids and I suspected, as her mother, Susan).

James Lyons, as Colin Craven, also did an adequate job, as did Jean Hageman as the overbearing Mrs. Medlock.

The story, as dramatized from the Burnett novel by Clare Tree Major, told of a spoiled girl, Mary, who became a happy and lovable child while she was learning to cure her cousin, Colin, of his imaginary illness and his unreasonable temper.

Miss Dickey's portrayal of Mary was better than the play seemed to permit, with its incredibly swift change in the girl's outlook and demeanor when she met the unruly Colin.

The children in the audience often became restive during the periods of talk, but they loved the action and the simple comedy. They were audibly suspicious that Susan, was played by Miss Wilder. And that role was well played.

The boys' and girls' reaction showed again the need for such plays as this and those presented by the Madison Theater Guild—and showed, too, the Guild's rightness in its emphasis on action in its productions.

DISC OF THE DAY: Those who like a pianist who puts most of emphasis on the melody rather than on fireworks should go for "Steve Allen at the Piano," a 10-inch Columbia LP. With bass, drums, and guitar assistance, he plays "Where or When," his own "My Candlelight," "The Victory March," "The Song Is You," "Stars Fell on Alabama," "Gone With the Wind," "Imagination," and "Fools Rush In."

NORWEGIAN PLAY: Erick Bye, graduate student from Norway, will play the title role in "Erasmus Montanus," Norwegian play by Ludvig Holberg, at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Play Circle of the Memorial Union. Bye also is directing the farce, which satirizes academic pedantry.

Also in the cast will be Prof. Bjarne Berulfsen, Oslo; Gerd Oie, Madison; Leslie Baty, Ogden, Utah; Bjarne Ulvestad, Syde, Norway; Trond Sandvig, Namos, Norway; Mr. and Mrs. Alf Sorenson, Oslo; Olaf Spetland, Mandal, Norway, and Tove Kjellson, Skien, Norway.

ERIK BYE Presented by the University of Wisconsin department of Scandinavian languages, the play will be open to the public without charge.

PARADE: Twelve bands will be in the parade at the Middleton district music festival Friday, April 25. The procession will start at 3:30 p.m. The festival will open Thursday, April 24.

RADIO-TELEVISION CONFERENCE: Reservations for the pre-convention dinner of the 23rd conference of the Wisconsin Assn. for Better Radio and Television must reach Mrs.
