SO IT SEEMS

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

"Please tell us what went wrong with the bidding of this hand," requests a New York reader. "We held it in the tournament in New York on Decoration Day, and we've been arguing about it ever since."

"North says he couldn't bid with only an ace and a queen, especially when his only short suit was bid by South."

He thinks South should have shown a strong hand by making a takeout double of one heart. Then, perhaps the ace and the queen would have looked like useful cards.

"South says he doesn't like to make a takeout double when void of the opponent's suit. He thinks he showed a good hand by going to the level of three vulnerable without hearing a word from North."

"Who is right, and what are the reasons?" South is right, and North didn't think hard enough. Just consider the South bidding without looking at the South hand. South must have at least ten black cards, and therefore at most three red cards. Suppose that one of those three red cards, and that the other two red cards are losers.

North's only question is: How solid is South in the black suits? If two tricks must be lost in the red suits, can South develop the black suits without loss and thus make a game in clubs?

North doesn't know the answer to this question, but he doesn't need it. He can bid four clubs to let South answer the question. South doesn't have to guess; he can just look at his hand and see that there will be a good play for game opposite any hand that was worth a raise to four clubs.

If South had a slightly weaker hand he would pass at four clubs; gates to "rally to the Taft banner."

Advertisement for Wisconsin Telephone Company featuring a bell and text: 'This Month's Badger Bell Salute for distinguished service. Her baby gasped ...her memory failed...but her telephone operator didn't fail her! If a letter hadn't come to your telephone company's Fond du Lac office addressed to "The Operator Who Was So Kind," this story might never have been told. The letter explained, "This is my way of thanking her. I'll remember her in my prayers always." And on a snapshot enclosed with the letter was written: "This is the little boy you helped. I'm sure if he could talk, he'd say 'thanks,' too!" The story? It's simple, and typical of the spirit of telephone men and women the country over. A Fond du Lac mother's baby boy, seriously sick in the night, suffered a convulsion, with that dreaded gasping for breath that strikes terror to any mother's heart. She was frantic—so excited she couldn't recall the family doctor's number, or even his name! Would the operator please, please, help her? The operator immediately called a doctor and told him of the emergency. He hurried to the home and administered to the little boy. The operator, Mrs. Norma Schmit, has the letter now, and the snapshot, among her cherished mementos. Folks like Norma help mightily to make your telephone a valued friend in time of need and make the company "a good place to work." WISCONSIN TELEPHONE COMPANY A Good Place to Work'
