TIP O' THE MORNING: WIBA'S "Kids' Club" will be off the air for a month after Sunday's program; it is expected to return about Sept. 7.

A STRANGE AND MOVING play, neither great nor poor nor mediocre, opened Thursday night at the Wisconsi Union theater, the second offering of Wisconsin Players' sum mer season. In spite of such flaws as self-conscious acting and car lessly prepared properties (milk bottles too obviously empt for example), "Come Back, Little Sheba" held the audience's atter tion always. This was largely the result of its certain tenseness and a constant sense of impending climax, for which both Author William Inge and Director Ronald Mitchell shared credit.

This was the story of a frustrated man and his thoughtless and utterly commonplace wife, their household tension emphasized and climactically loosed by the freedom and lightness and amorality of

It was the story of "Doc" Delaney, forced out of medical school by his own indiscretion; sent to a sleazy life by alcoholism; loving oratic national convention aphis wife and showing deep affection for Marie, a co-ed roomer (whether as a daughter or not was never clear), and driven back to drink meetings and broadcasts have gone to be be be being the bound of the Dewn. Down Hoe Hoe Down H Weldon Sheerer played Doc and Mrs. Margaret Meyer was Lola, his wife. Both built their characterizations up during the play, but seldom achieved a true feeling of reality.

Sheerer's drunken attack on Lola at the play's peak was, quite appropriately, the most credible scene of the drama—a few minutes of stark tragedy and violent reality.

Vergenne Fosshage was an alternately demure and deceptive Marie, and Donald Hotton sparked some scenes in a minor role as the glet's flance. John Martinson, as her lover, burlesqued rather than satirized an egotistic athlete.

Best characterization of the cast was that of Gladys Greathouse is neighbor whose opinion of Lola underwent a great change — and low shocked she would have been to know the reason.
