Army Changes Promotion Setup

New System Set for Enlisted Men

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Army Friday adopted a new system of doling out promotions for enlisted personnel.

It also made the promotions harder to get. It increased the minimum time an individual must spend in his present grade before qualifying for a promotion, and it also increased the minimum period which he must serve in a position calling for a higher grade.

Details Withheld

Details of the increase were withheld pending their distribution to the various commands.

An Army spokesman said only that the increase was moderate in the lower enlisted grades and greater for the higher grades.

Separate and more liberal criteria were set up for men assigned to combat units in Korea.

The Army announcement said that because of a lack of vacancies there have been few enlisted promotions outside of the Far East command since last March. It said it is now possible for "a limited number of promotions" to be made.

To Specify Number

Under the new plan, beginning Friday, the Army each month will authorize each major command a specific number of promotions which may then be made among eligible personnel.

In all commands, provisions have been made for waiving the time-in-grade requirements in exceptionally meritorious cases.

No change in the system of promotions for officers has been announced.

Sturgeon Bay Plant to Join Walkout

WEST BEND —(U.P.)— Workers at the Amity Leather Products Co. plant in Sturgeon Bay are expected to join a walkout at the firm's plant here, a union spokesman said Friday.

Victor Pizak, president of the AFL United Auto Workers (UAW) local, said workers at the Sturgeon Bay plant would "soon" join a walkout of 200 workers that began here Monday.

Company and union officials said the chief disagreement was over retroactivity of a contract to replace one that expired last February.

LONG IN ONE PLACE

EL DORADO, Kan.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Lucy Alice Lill lived 82 years on the homestead to which she came as a seven-year-old girl from Athens, Ill. with her parents. She married, reared nine children, and remained on the farm until her death.

Incurable Disease Strikes Oak Trees in Madison Area

Madison oak trees are being attacked by a disease which is virtually incurable.

University of Wisconsin specialists explained Friday that oak wilt is sure death for a tree once it gets inside. Small fungi get inside the vessels of a tree and clog them until the tree dies, they said.

A recent outbreak of the disease has been reported on the north side of Lake Mendota, where many dead trees are being cut down. It is also fairly prevalent in Madison and its suburbs.

Only two methods have been discovered so far for stopping the spread of the disease. One is to cut the roots between a healthy and a diseased tree. A university professor explained that the roots of oak trees grow together underground and will spread the fungi from tree to tree.

The other way is to poison all the healthy trees near a diseased one and break the chain that way. Oak wilt has been prevalent in the Madison area for the past four or five years, N. L. Humphrey of the Humphrey Expert Tree Service explained.

The university has been experimenting with the disease and has been making some progress recently, officials said.

The disease cannot be recognized in a tree until the leaves begin to wilt, and then it will die within two or three weeks, Humphrey said.
