Art Lecture

TIP O' THE MORNING: Jack Benny will record several radio shows in advance so he can go to Alaska to entertain servicemen during the Christmas holidays. And Marie "Irma" Wilson has been booked for a three-week engagement next spring at the London Palladium.

MEMBERS of the Madison Art assn. will receive special invitations to attend a lecture by Rico Lebrun at 8 p. m. Friday in the Wisconsin Union theater. The talk by the California painter and teacher, open to the public, will be sponsored by the school of education and the art education department of the University of Wisconsin.

Prof. Alred Sessler of the art education department describes Lebrun as one of the country's outstanding painters. "Though you may not agree with him," Sessler says, "you cannot escape being stimulated and challenged by his work."

Jules Langsner, California critic, wrote of Lebrun: "It is impossible to be passively neutral" about his art; "the observer is either profoundly moved or just as profoundly repelled."

Born in Naples in 1900, the artist studied at Naples academy and twice held Guggenheim fellowships. After coming to the U. S., he taught at the Art Students League in New York City and painted murals for the Treasury Art Project. He is now director of the Jepson Art Institute at Los Angeles.

His gigantic mural, "Crucifixion," in the Los Angeles County museum brought him worldwide recognition.

TODAY'S QUOTE: Lee Bowman on the Bankhead autobiography... "A parrot around Tallulah must feel as frustrated as a kleptomaniac in a piano store."

ANNIVERSARY: Monday was the silver anniversary of the first modern feature picture with dialog and singing—"The Jazz Singer," Warner Brothers production which starred Al Jolson. It opened Oct. 6, 1927, in New York City and Feb. 15, 1928, at the Parkway theater, Madison.

Today, history is being repeated. A brand new version of "The Jazz Singer" is being filmed at the Warner studios, this time in Technicolor. Danny Thomas plays the Jolson role, with Peggy Lee co-starring.

DISCS OF THE DAY: Recommended from recent "pop" releases. Pautette Sisters and Larry Clinton orchestra (Columbia): "You'll Never Get Away," which sounds like a hit, and "My-na Shay-na Ty-ra," close-harmony number. Peter Hanley also sings on the former. (Columbia).

"Lee Wiley Sings Vincent Youmans" and "Lee Wiley Sings Irving Berlin," a pair of 10-inch LPs on which Stan Freeman and Cy Walter furnish two-piano accompaniment. Both discs have some of the composers' less-familiar songs as well as standards. Intimate, "classy" singing. (Columbia).
