TIP OF THE MORNING: The Wisconsin Union theater is negotiating for a spring engagement of Katharine Cornell in "The Constant Wife." If our records are right, this would be her first Madison appearance since "No Time for Comedy" in 1939.

TOD ANDREWS will play the title role when "Mr. Roberts" comes to Madison for the second time. He will have the Henry Fonda part at the Parkway theater Friday and Saturday, Nov. 21 and 22. Andrews got his first theatrical break in "My Sister Eileen," as the Brazilian admiral. This is his second season on tour in "Mr. Roberts."

A hundred ceramics by Aaron Bohrod, artist in residence at the University of Wisconsin, and F. Carleton Ball, of Southern Illinois university, will go on display Monday at the galleries of the Associated American Artists in New York City. They will be shown until Nov. 8, then will move to the Elizabeth Nelson galleries in Chicago for showing from Nov. 15 to Dec. 8.

'RIGOLETTO': Two things probably account for the popularity of Verdi's "Rigoletto," which the London Opera Co. will give Wednesday, Nov. 12, at the Capitol theater. They are the singable arias and the familiarity of the basic story.

Best known arias are "Caro Nome" and "La Donna e Mobile," which are, for that matter, among the best known melodies in all operatic literature, ranking with the "Toreador Song" from "Carmen," "One Fine Day" from "Mme. Butterfly," and "Evening Star" from "Tanhauser."

The story is that of a man who hides a deep bitterness beneath a cloak of nonchalance and spurious gaiety—a favorite character of novelists and dramatists.
