JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby

West was a very experienced player, but he made a very wooden opening lead in today's hand. If a good, experienced player can make this sort of mistake perhaps a word on the subject won't go astray.

The spade lead gave declarer no trouble at all. Dummy took the first trick with the ace of spades, and declarer drew trumps. He could then draw dummy's losing hearts on the ace and king of clubs, after which he could easily claim the rest of the tricks.

Obviously the defenders could have taken the first two tricks if West had begun by laying down the ace of hearts. "How was I to know about that?" West wailed when the hand was over.

The bidding actually told the whole story. Whenever the dummy shows a very strong suit and tremendous trump support for the opening bid, it's a good idea for the opening leader to lay down an ace if he has one.

Paste that advice in the back of your head so that you'll remember it in situations of this kind, and you'll save thousands of points at the bridge table.

When declarer has a solid trump
