TIP OF THE MORNING: Rosalind Russell and Marie Wilson will be a screen team again in "You Can't Judge a Lady," to be filmed next summer.

FIVE young voices saying "Merry Christmas" in five different foreign languages opened the third annual "Welcome Travelers" Christmas Day program over WIBA, honoring the family chosen as best typifying the Christmas spirit all year round.

Why the five languages? That's part of the story. The "Welcome Travelers" Christmas family of 1952 was the John G. Van Dykes of Kalamazoo, Mich. They were selected because, aside from the fact that they have given three adopted youngsters a permanent home, they also have turned their modest dwelling into a miniature United Nations.

Students from foreign countries attending any of Kalamazoo's three colleges are always welcome at the Van Dykes'. They are given food, shelter, or small loans when need ed. But more important to these homesick youngsters oceans away from homelands are the gifts of friendship and real family life.

M. C. Tommy Bartlett and the entire "Welcome Travelers" staff visited the Van Dykes in their home to transcribe the Christmas Day broadcast and to award them $10,000 worth of gifts. They received many major items of furniture and household equipment, clothes, toys and bicycles for the children, television console, home movie making outfit, sewing machine, power lawn mower, and other gifts.

Comest judges, who selected the Van Dykes family from the thousands and thousands nominated by listeners' letters, were actor Pat O'Brien, author Emily Kimbrough, and Collier's editor Gordon Manning.

The five foreign students who told of the Van Dykes' loving kindness to them on the special broadcast were Yavus Cakmekci of Turkey, Hossein Hayati of Iran, Monique Jako of France, Mozammil Haquail of Pakistan, and John Bilson, of Liberia. Miss Jako and Alicia Gonzales of Nicaragua also sang songs in their native languages. The students were given
