Anna Russell Hits the Mark

One of the reasons "Blondie" is so popular is that it sometimes comes so close to truth that it's downright embarrassing. Such is the case with "Anna Russell Sings?," a Columbia LP which, like "You Are There" and "You Can Hear It Now" and played again and again with recurring enjoyment.

This, though, is neither documentary nor drama nor eaves-dropping. It is high satire on the lecture-recital of a kind too often inflicted upon club meetings. Miss Russell has a real voice, and that's the main reason'she is so successful in satirizing lessons in how to ful in satirizing lessons in how to be an opera singer.

Other recent recordings of superior merit:

"Cosi Fan Tutte," Mozart, with Eleanor Steber, Roberta Peters, Blanche Thebom, Richard Tucker, Frank Guarrera, Lorenzo Alvary, and the Metropolitan Opera chorus and orchestra: Fritz Stiedry, conductor... This is the new English version, reduced somewhat for recording. The shortening process omits much of the recitative, without seriously damaging the continuity. Every one of the singers does a first-rate forthright job, with prussingers does a first-rate forthright job with prussingers does as first-rate forthright job with prussingers does as first-rate forthright job with prussing the continuity. "Piano Concerto No. 4." Rubinstein, recorded by Ocear Levant and the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra; Dimitri Mitropoulos, conductor. This is valuable largely for two reasons—the fact that it is the first major Rubinstein work ever recorded in full, and Levant's authoritative performance. The music itself doesn't rank with the great piano concertos.

"Choral Caravan." recorded by the DePaur Infantry chorus . . Leonard DePaur's singers show their versatility as well as their quality on this Columbia LP disc. Among the six numbers are "Tye Got Sixpence." in march time; "Song of the French Partisans; and "Calio No Llores." Soloists are George Marshall, Charles Holland, and Luther Saxon (who was the original Joe of "Carmen Jones.")

Elephant Charged Cameraman

Every herd of wild elephants, seems to have a leader. This beast is sure to be large and strong and is likely to be smart, as well.

The leader may be a bull elephant, but a big cow elephant often takes control of a herd. She may have strong tusks, and in this way differs from an Indian elephant. In India the females are without tasks on have consult the without tusks, or have small, thin
