The "Let's Draw" show is made up of paintings and drawings by children in Grades 1 to 8 who study with James A. Schwalbach, University of Wisconsin extension specialist in art and design. The work given by radio supplements that of the classroom teacher. Best pictures are sent to Schwalbach each week by the teachers.

This year. 95,040 boys and girls in 4,320 Wisconsin classrooms participated in "Let's Draw"—an all-time high for the series.

About 46,000 drawings were sent in for evaluation; of these 1,613 were chosen for the class' honor roll.

Schwalbach also directs the rural art program, founded 14 years ago by Chris L. Christensen and John Steuart Curry, then dean of agriculture and artist in residence, respectively.
