Uncle Ray's Corner

A nature riddle of this kind is spun from a juice which comes from the mouth of the pupa. The "When is a queen not a queen?" A good answer seems to be: Schwartzkopf, baritone Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau, and a portion of the opera, "Lulu," by Alban Berg.

"When she is a queen among der the name of "ant eggs" for use in feeding goldfish and other pet fish.

times before the pupa stage is reached.

The pupa usually has a coverly ing which makes it a "cocoon." It eats nothing, but develops jaws, legs, and other parts. At length it splits the covering, and comes forh as an ant which is ready to start a life of work.

You may wonder where the ready to start a life of work.
You may wonder where the young ant gets the cocoon cov-ering. The answer is that the case
