JACOBY ON BRIDGE By Oswald Jacoby

When you double a contract of three no-trump you are usually guiding your partner to the best opening lead. The opening leader observes the following principles: One. If the defenders have bid a suit, the double calls for a lead in that suit. Two. If each defender has bid a suit, the double asks for a lead in the first suit bid by the dummy. In today's hand dummy's first (and only) suit was spades. Hence the double asked for a spade lead. East couldn't be quite sure that a spade lead would defeat the contract, but he could be confident that it would give the defenders their best chance. properly and obediently opened a spade, and East was able to win the trick with the ten when the eight was played from the dummy. East naturally returned a diamond, South finessed the queen, and West won with the king. West now returned another spade, giving East another trick; and East returned another diamond, giving West a second finesse. By this process the defenders were able to take three spade tricks, two diamonds, and the ace of clubs. There was nothing South could do about it; he could merely sit there and lose 500 points.

Capitol. FEATURE: Plander of the Sun TYPE: Adventure. REFERENCE: Don Davies. CAST: Al Colby, Glenn Ford, Julie Barnes, Diana Lynn, Anna Luz, Patricia Medina; Thomas a. Berrien, Francis L. Sullivan; Jefferson, Sean-McClory. PLOT: Broke and without money for boat fare home from Cuba, Al Colby agrees to carry a mysterious packet to its destination in Mexico. On the way, attempts are made to steal the small parcel and its benefactor is killed. On arrival near the ancient Zapotec ruins, Colby discovers his carefully-guarded cargo is the key-manipulator to buried Indian treasure and several people are willing to do anything to obtain the packet. In an effort to solve the mystery of the treasure's hiding place and collect the museum's reward for the finder, he gets caught in a web of intrigue and adventure, near and within the ruins, leading to the ultimate discovery of the treasure and the forces fighting to get it. HIGH POINTS: Interesting history and photography of Zapotec ruins, with good spots of di-

3 MCs Named for 'Harvest of Harmony' Tonight

Members of two of Madison's popular barbershop quartets and the president of the Madison chapter of the international organization will be masters of ceremonies for the "Harvest of Harmony" tonight. Jerry Ripp, of the Cardinals, and Kenneth Davidson, of the For-Mor quartet, will share duties at East High school. Calmer Brown will be master of ceremonies at West.

The shows at the two schools will be identical except for the masters of ceremonies and the opening choruses. The Madison chapter chorus will open the West program and the Portage chorus will raise the curtain at East. Both performances will start at 8. Tickets will be available at each auditorium's boxoffice.

Witnesses to Fatal Car Accident Sought
