City Man, Navy Squadron Leader, Gets Three Awards

Lt. Cmdr. Arthur N. Melhus, Jr., USN, whose parents live at 2213 University ave., has received three awards for leading a Navy bomber squadron in sorties in the Korean theater since March 30.

Lt. Cmdr. Melhus was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for destroying a number of enemy tanks and trucks, the Bronze Star for leadership of his squadron, and a commendation ribbon for damage inflicted by his bomber on enemy bridges.

The awards were presented to the Madison bomber pilot by Vice Adm. W. P. Clarke in ceremonies aboard the carrier, U.S.S. Boxer, in Korean waters recently.

Lt. Cmdr. Melhus was made commanding officer of a squadron of bomber pilots a year ago. The group underwent instruction on the West Coast before leaving for Korea attached to the Boxer last March 20.

The Madison Navy flyer enlisted in the Navy in 1941 after graduating from the University of Wisconsin. His wife is the former Isabelle Nyhagen of Stoughton. The couple has four sons, the youngest born since his father left the United States.

Mrs. Melhus and the four children live in Alameda, Calif. Tentative orders will return Lt. Cmdr. Melhus to duty in the United States at the end of November.

The Madison man's squadron did not lose a pilot in several months of combat, although one pilot is still missing after a night raid. Although many of the Navy bombers were riddled by flak, none was so badly damaged it could not be repaired.
