Bill Doudna's SPOTLIGHT Opera Lecture

TIP O' THE MORNING: Leroy Anderson's new instrumental, "The Typewriter," should ride to the best-seller lists fast, and stay there a long time.

AN unprecedented demand for admission has brought about an unprecedented action by the University of Wisconsin extension division.

Dr. Sigfrid Prager's lecture on "Il Trovatore" at 7:30 p. m. Monday in Music hall will be open to the public at a fee of 75 cents per ticket.

Usually, admission to such classes is limited to persons who enroll for the whole course. Because "Il Trovatore" will be performed at the Wisconsin Union theater on Monday, Oct. 26, the extension office was besieged with requests for tickets to Prager's lecture.

On Tuesday, it bowed to the demand and announced that tickets would be available at 203 Extension bldg. today through Friday and at the door Monday night. Telephone reservations can be made by calling 5-3311, extension 4628.

A class in another field of the arts will open tonight, and a few more students can be accepted, the division also announced. The course is a studio class in drawing and painting. One section will begin work at 7 tonight in Studio 80H, Education bldg.; another section, which also has room for some students, will start at 7 p. m. Thursday in the same studio.

of WHA, is spending this week at Ames, Ia., where he is observing news-presentation techniques on WOI and WOI-TV. From Ames, he will go to Chicago for similar study at the National Broadcasting Co. studios.

DISCS OF THE DAY: Some recommendations on popular records.

- * Margie Good (MG): "I Shouldn't Care" and "Cherry Wine Blues," the artist's first disc. Good singing, and first-rate backing by the Van Alexander orchestra. Note the trumpet on the first side.
- * Mindy Carson (Columbia): "Darling, Darling," based on German ballad, and "I Never Let You Cross My Mind," enticing love song.
- * Bob Santa Maria (MG): "If You Said Goodbye," based on song from "Anna," and "The Night Holds No Fear," unusual ballad. Good backing from Glenn Osser's band.
- * Jerry Vale (Columbia): "A Tear, A Kiss, A Smile," released but not yet sounding, and "Ask Me," an imitative delivery which brings this record down to two stars.
- * Frankie Laine and Jimmy Boyd (Columbia): "Let's Go Fishing" and "Poor Little Piggy Bank," another pair by the "Tell Me a Story" team which should have the customers flocking to the juke boxes.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Statue Is Symbol of Birmingham's Iron Industry

BIRMINGHAM—In Alabama's largest city stands the Iron Man. This symbol of the leading industry of Birmingham rests on a pedestal at the top of Red Mountain.

The Iron Man is described as "the second largest statue in America." It is 53 feet high, and has a weight of 60 tons. A single thumb weighs 170 pounds.

The Iron Man was an exhibit at the world's fair in St. Louis 49 years ago. It represents Vulcan, the ancient Roman god of fire and metal working. The pedestal, or base, is of white Alabama marble. If we add the height of the tall pedestal to that of the statue, the total is more than 150 feet.

A record of the past century tells about Frank Gilmer, who rode across Red Mountain on his way from Tennessee to Montgomery. He saw "red clouds" on the small mountain, and asked an expert in Montgomery to test them. The hard pieces were found to be rich iron ore.

The city of Birmingham was founded later—32 years ago—and was named after a noted British steel center. Nowhere else in the world, it is stated, is there a large local supply of three important elements for the steel industry—iron ore, coal and limestone.

Coal is mined at scores of places in the Warrior, Goosa and Cahaba coal fields around Birmingham. The coal is used to melt iron ore in furnaces, and there is a heavy production of pig iron. Some of the iron is
