A Little Saturday Talk: Busy Houston

HOUSTON— Yesterday I told things to keep the little patients about my return visit to Hugo from harm.

a young gorilla, and to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greer, who brought him back from Africa. The Greers have the old, and pleasing, virtue of "hospitality." They have driven me far and wide to show me interesting points in and around Houston.

Mr. Lee Gammill, administrator, showed me around the Children's Hospital. Among the objects which interested me were the "Gammill tables." These tables are made so that they will stretch across the beds, and will rise as the beds rise. They have mirrors, book racks and space for writing.

One place to which they have taken me is the San Jacinto Monument, several miles from the city limits. This monument is a pillar very much like the Washington Monument. It was built in memory of the battle which marked success for the Texas struggle for independence.

This busy city of Houston seems to me to be "growing out of its boots." Thanks to the oil millions of Texas, and to other factors as well, Houston and other cities in the state are adding to their population by leaps and bounds.

I have been told about two Texas millionaires who won their fortunes by the grace of oil wells. These men are gifted with kindly hearts, and are devoting many millions of dollars to the Texas Medical Center and to the University of Houston.

During a visit at the Texas Medical Center, I saw several of the hospital units. In due course there will be 14 buildings or more, and they will make up one of the great medical centers of the world.

I spent more than an hour at the Children's Hospital, one of the units of the Texas Medical Center. Here I saw the best equipment I have observed anywhere in a hospital. The beds are low enough so that if a patient should happen to fall out, there will be only a little drop to the floor. For smaller children, the beds are surrounded by rail-

NO ANTIQUE

FT. ERIE, Ont. (AP) — Two Buffalo men unearthed what appeared to be a rare button while digging for relics at this historic old fort. They treated their find with a special fluid, then examined the button with a magnifying glass. It turned out to be from a Buffalo department store, without the slightest historic value.

TIP O' THE MORNING: Andrew Nahm, Korean student at the University of Wisconsin, will visit "Welcome Travelers" (NBC-WIBA) at 9 a. m. Tuesday, telling of his visits to parents of Americans killed in the Korean fighting.

THE SAUTER-FINEGAN orchestra, headlining the 1953 University of Wisconsin Homecoming show, last top honors Friday night to the Billy Williams quartet, as entertaining a bunch of vocalists as ever graced a Madison stage.

Ben Bert, a juggler who is one of the few showmen really rating the word "fabulous," almost stopped the show, and the audience of 7,500 or more also went for Rochelle and Beebe, a dance team.

The Sauter-Finegan orchestra is made up of fine musicians. It has unique arrangements, some rich and mellow, some sharp and brassy, some with a great beat.

What it lacks is a sense of showmanship; what it has too much of is a desire, often frantic, to be utterly different.

Even with such lovely things as "Autumn Leaves" and "April in Paris," with Sally Sweetland's voice helping out, on the program, a listener finds himself wishing for a straight, commercial arrangement occasionally. Of the fast-moving tunes, too many sound like a bit from the opening "Doodletown Fifers."

The show was 25 minutes late in starting, so that by the time Sauter and Finegan got around to the slow "Dream Play," a good many customers were too sleepy, or something, to stay, and they walked out in droves. A good showman would have taken a cue from the restlessness which greeted the second of the "Play" series and figured that 10:55 p.m. was too late for more of the suite, especially a soporific like "Dream Play."

And Miss Sweetland should have sung more.

The Williams quartet was mightily successful in all it did. For one thing, the lads varied their style with every tune, and used novel ideas to promote the songs — gestures, a startling close-to-the-mike phrase from the basso, and so on.

Bert juggled balls, Indian clubs, and even tambourines. A girl in the audience commented, "He can't do it" — but he did. The dance team opened as a ballroom act, but soon launched its comedy with the tiny girl tossing her taller partner over her shoulder. From then on, all was hysteria, even the part of the act which many of the customers couldn't see because of the stage's low placing.

FOR CHILDREN: The Majestic theater next week will have special shows for children. An hour of comedies will be added to the regular bill Thursday and Friday afternoons, and a three-hour matinee on Saturday will include "Cap'n Jolly's Kiddie Show" as well as movies.

PREVIEW: Concert-goers will have a forestate of the music of the Virtuosi di Roma, tonight. Recordings by the group will be used on "Classical Hour" over WKOW at 9. The ensemble will open the Wisconsin Union concert series next week.

AROUND WISCONSIN: A company of 12 professionals will stage "Kiss Me, Kate" Saturday night, Nov. 7, in the Janesville high school auditorium. The show will be sponsored by the Janesville Business and Professional Women's club.

VIOLA high school will conduct a one-act play contest in the Community bldg. at 8 p. m. Tuesday. The plays will be "Fog on the Valley," seniors; "Leader of the People," juniors; "Stolen Identity," sophomores, and "The Happy Journey to Trenton and Camden," freshmen.

Lois Raye, 1950-51 winner of the Marian Anderson award, will be contralto soloist when the Milton Choral Union presents "Judas Maccabaeus" in the Milton College auditorium-gymnasium Nov. 24.

HELP FOR MUSIC: A new approach to the dilemma of deficit-ridden symphony orchestra and opera organizations is brought to light by Irving Kolodin, music editor of the Saturday Review, in the Oct. 31 issue of that magazine. In "How Good Music Can Pay Its Way," Kolodin directs attention to the $2,000,000 annually paid into the Music Performance Trust Fund on the sale of records, and proposes that the record companies take a larger interest in seeing how it is spent.

The trust agreement is tied to the expiring contract between the record makers and the American Federation of Musicians. The fund has increased steadily since it was established five years ago. With the sales of classical records at an all-time high, and steadily rising, Kolodin foresees the possibility of a million dollars of the total amount being allotted annually for serious music within the next few years.

Kolodin ties into his argument the prohibition on American musicians' participating in European recordings, which he terms "unrealistic and unworkable" with the fact that no fee is collected on the thousands of European-made recordings now sold in the American market. With these factors as trading points, the article proposes that the new contract take them into consideration, thus extending job opportunities for American musicians in European records made to be sold here, while equalizing competition between European and American manufacturers. In any case, the result would be to swell the amount available for the support of good music, he declares.

VICTIM MOVES

Fernando Sippy, Oscar Mayer and Co. employe who was slugged and robbed of $70 two weeks ago in South Madison, has moved from 1042 E. Johnson st., his address at the time of the assault, the residents informed The State Journal Friday.

That address was used for him in Friday morning's story which told of the sentencing of his assailants.

You Can't Tax It With You, Ike Notes

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower brought up the subject of individual freedom Thursday in an informal talk before the National Forest Congress.

Listing the rights of the individual, he mentioned the right of the individual to accumulate savings and do with them as he pleases.

"Subject to taxes," the President added quickly. "I must mention that."
