Libraries at State Colleges to Meet 3 Decades' Needs

Adequate library facilities for the next three decades will be provided for students at the nine Wisconsin state colleges when the system's $5,000,000 construction program is complete, Director E. R. McPhee said Thursday.

McPhee said Whitewater State's library was the most recent to go into operation, with libraries scheduled to open this spring or summer at Platteville, River Falls, Stevens Point, and Milwaukee. The La Crosse State College library will be started during the summer with completion scheduled for the fall of 1955, McPhee said.

The job will be complete when a proposed library at Eau Claire State College is approved by the State Building Commission. The remaining schools, at Superior and Oshkosh, now have adequate library facilities, McPhee said.

He said the new buildings were planned to meet an expected doubled enrolment during the next 30 years. Most of the schools have been using existing buildings for libraries, a situation that resulted in overcrowding.

NAMED DELEGATE

The Rev. Alfred W. Swan, minister of the First Congregational church, has been selected as the Madison delegate to the American Christian Palestine Committee conference to be held Sunday through Tuesday at Washington, D. C.

The selection was announced Thursday by Mrs. Herman Mack, 2117 Regent st., president of the Madison area Hadassah, and Rabbi Max A. Lipshitz of Beth Israel temple, president of the Madison Zionist district.

EAT ANYTHING Renor Reduces

MADISON, WIS. "I think Renor Concentrate is wonderful. I have lost all my excess weight thanks to the Renor home recipe. Now I can enjoy eating anything I want without worry of gas pains or sour stomach. I feel so very much better since reducing. I'm on the job 8 hours a day and am not tired out. I don't want to be without Renor." So writes David H. Lester of 843 W. Dayton St.

Many of your Wisconsin neighbors are recommending Renor as the safe effective way to reduce. Available at your druggist for only $1.40. Ask for free booklet. Manufacturer will refund if you're not satisfied with results from first bottle. Get liquid Renor and start reducing.

TIP O' THE MORNING: Amelia Anthony, Whiteface, Tex., founders of Girlstown, U.S.A., will be announced as "Woman of 1953" on Bob Hope's television show Tuesday night.

WHETHER William Warfield sang opera, oratorio, art songs, or folk music, his Thursday night audience loved him, and showed its affection with applause.

Another audience will hear the marvelously controlled power of his voice in the Wisconsin Union theater at 8 tonight. He will offer the same program.

Best known for his work in "Porgy and Bess" and "Show Boat," the baritone chose three of his encores from those shows —"I Got Plenty o' Nuttin'," "It Ain't Necessarily So" (which he didn't sing in "Porgy"), and "Ol' Man River." He also did "No, John, No," self-accompanied.

Warfield showed three notable characteristics: an effective range of great breadth, the ability to transmit his own perception of a song's meaning, and the aforementioned control of his vast volume. In addition, he had clean enunciation and great staying power on long-held tones.

All these showed up in the first group, which consisted of the majestic "Mighty Lord and King All Glorious" by Bach, the dramatic "Hear Me" from Handel's "Julius Caesar," and the Monteverdi "Laudate Dominum," probably its first performance here.

The last was marked by cadenza-like passages which emphasized Warfield's capabilities.

His lyric sense appeared in songs of Schubert, Schumann, and Loewe, and his feeling for the dramatic came into play again in "The Two Grenadiers," Loewe's "Odin's Sea Ride," and the "Drinking Song" from "Hamlet." There was great good humor in his "La Calunnia," in some of the folk music, and in the "Porgy and Bess" numbers, and tenderness in Copland's "The Little Horses" and a Loewe song.

Warfield's lowest notes were solid bass, his high ones usually of a timbre approaching tenor (although he let a tremolo interfere occasionally), and the middle ones were honest baritone.

NEXT: The 34th annual Wisconsin Union concert series will end with concerts by Jascha Heifetz, violinist, March 7 and 8.

* * *

GERKE TWINS: Julie and Juliette Gerke, Madison, duo-pianists, will play at Janesville, Green Bay, and Port Washington in the next three weeks.

They will entertain at the Janesville Rotary club "ladies night" Monday, when the club will entertain overseas students from the University of Wisconsin and Beloit college.

On March 1, the Gerkes will present a concert in Green Bay for the Founders Day banquet of the American Assn of University Women.

Julie and Juliette will go to Port Washington on March 13 to represent the university's student body at an Ozaukee county alumni meeting.

NAMES IN THE NEWS: A Milwaukeean, Ben Marcus, was elected president of the Allied States assn., a motion picture exhibitors' organization, at its directors' meeting in Cincinnati, O., last week.

Craig Timberlake, a member of Fred Waring's glee club, has written a book about David Belasco, "Bishop of Broadway," which will be published late this month.

"Deacon" Andy Griffith, who recorded "What It Was, Was Football," is the first performer ever staged by a disc company on a salary basis. He'll get a weekly wage as well as royalties, while Capitol Records will share in his earnings in other fields, while promoting his appearance therein.

FEATURE: The Living Desert

TYPE: Walt Disney True-Life series

CAST: Desert animals

REVIEWER: Wally Wikoff

STORY: Completely unrehearsed and innocent of the proximity of cameras, the desert animals perform life's dramas in exciting, gripping scenes—some hilarious, some grim, and some slightly scarey—but all intense.

VERDICT: A magnificent film which, although essentially educational is amazingly more entertaining than many films featuring humans.

ALSO: "Ben and Me," a Disney cartoon showing that poor old Ben Franklin didn't really do all he is credited with but merely borrowed the ideas from Amos, the churchmouse.
