Morgenthau Assailed; 'Truth' Is Demanded
NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Henry Morgenthau should be forced to tell the precise truth of the great embezzlement of countless millions of dollars of our taxes which was put over by traitorous Americans in the Treasury, when he was Secretary of the Treasury. The most notorious of these traitors was Harry Dexter White. White was a member of the Boston clique including Alger Hiss, who was inducted into the government by Westbrooke Pegler Felix F. R. a. n. k. further. As to whether Morgenthau knowingly reached out for White or innocently permitted someone to impose White on him in the Treasury, no government authority has ever tried to determine. Therefore, Morgenthau should be compelled to take the stand, under oath this time, and subject to the penalties of perjury and contempt of Congress, and forced to come clean.

This fellow certainly deserves no delicate consideration. His department was rotten and, on a previous occasion, he proved the folly of those who permitted him to testify without being sworn.

That occasion was the effort of a Senate committee to ascertain why he wrote the lend-lease bill and the "legislative intent" of the authors.

Lend-lease was a fateful incident in the conduct of this republic into the war against the enemies of Soviet Russia. That betrayal entailed a subsequent betrayal into the United Nations with entailed sacrifice of our national sovereignty.

Edward Foley, one of Morgenthau's Treasury lawyers, subsequently confessed to me in his office in the Treasury that he and Oscar Cox, another such, wrote this act together under Morgenthau's orders in the Treasury building during a busy week-end. Although they were "officers of the court" they kept silent when they knew, as Foley admitted he did, that the Senate committee was trying to obtain information which they could give.

Thus whoever forbears to put Morgenthau under oath does so at considerable peril to the truth.

Specifically, Senator La Follette asked Morgenthau whether one Beaman, a subordinate functionary of the House, "was primarily responsible for the drafting of this measure."

Morgenthau, on trust as a cabinet officer and a gentleman, replied: "I think he can answer that better than I can." Again: "Did anyone in your department take a major part in drafting this bill?" Morgenthau: "I would not know how to answer that."

When old Senator Hiram Johnson, striving to save this country from war, asked Morgenthau: "Wasn't the bill written by Mr. Foley?" Morgenthau wriggled and writhed but did not come clean. "I do not think that is a correct statement," he finally said.

In desperation, Johnson asked: "So you cannot tell the genesis of the bill or who was the principal scrivener who wrote it?" Morgenthau said: "That is correct. I think it was the product of many brains."

It may be true that others took a whack at it after Foley and Cox had labored over the week-end. But Morgenthau certainly did know both the "genesis" and the identity of the two "principal scriveners" who wrote it under his orders.

Foley said the purpose of this deception, which he freely, almost boastfully, admitted, was to make it appear that the bill originated in Congress, "on the hill" and not in the Treasury, referred to as "down-town."

Now, regarding the Treasury engraving plates, paper, ink and other very special supplies which were actually delivered to the Russians and the Russian occupation marks redeemed by the American income-taxpayers, a Senate joint committee which investigated in 1947 failed to fix the guilt. That was during the Truman regime which at the Potsdam conference abandoned Berlin and a conquered strip of German territory 100 miles wide with all its population. The Democrats were anxious to conceal the guilt of their own party so they didn't fix the blame.

But, in December, 1953, Karl Mundt, as chairman of a Senate subcommittee on government operations abroad, brought in a further report which said the communists had established a high-level espionage and sub-
